one of non-intervention in Cuban domestic affairs."

Noting U.S. congressional protests to the executions, Assistant State Secretary Roy Rubottom said, "We are not going to intervene in what is essentially Cuba's affairs."

To avoid misunderstanding, the U.S. Navy cancelled previous plans for 3,000 U.S. Marines en route to manoeuvres near Puerto Rico to stop at the American navy base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. The base is at the opposite end of the island from Havana.

Castro earlier Thursday, in remarks to a group in his hotel lobby, had said that if U.S. Marines are sent to Cuba 200,000 gringos will die. Gringo is the derogatory Latin American term for U.S. citizens, of whom there are 12,000 living in Cuba.

Castro later told the Rotary club he had not realized this comment would be published but he stood by it.

CRITICS IN U.S.

The rebel chief's vision of U.S. troops landing in Cuba apparently followed demands by critics in the U.S. Congress that the United States do something to stop the Cuban firing squads. One of the loudest of these critics, Democratic representative Wayne Hays of Ohio said Thursday he meant economic retaliation, not the sending of troops.

President Manuel Urrutia said in a television interview today that the revolutionary courts had been ordered to turn over to the government documents and dossiers enumerating the crimes of Batista supporters.

He said the evidence would be made public to "correct foreign opinion," particularly in the United States, in what is going on in Cuba.

Urrutia said relations with the United States are cordial but Cuba insists on maintaining its own point of view.

GAGLARDI

pend on him being able to drive for business purposes. There was no reply.

"Someone in Mr. Lindsay's office phoned and said the department could not write an answer as it was against our regulations... we can't interfere when a magistrate makes a recommendation... but I would suggest you write the same letter to Magistrate Thomas."

"Magistrate Thomas didn't answer the letter, and my boy went to talk to him. He was just about thrown out of his office. The magistrate said: 'Oh you were the guy who wrote me. I wouldn't reduce your suspension by one day... it is a sin to write me, a magistrate, a letter.'"

Motor vehicle branch superintendent George Lindsay cleared his office of any responsibility in the matter today.

He said although his branch is the authority which "picks up" the licence in a suspension, such action is done on recommendation of a magistrate in cases of this nature.

FINAL RULING

It is procedure to follow a magistrate's recommendation, and in case of appeal, the appeal is forwarded to the magistrate, who makes the final ruling.

In the case of Mr. Midgley, he was advised to see the magistrate. This was also the case with respect to the minister. In each case, Magistrate Thomas' recommendations were followed.

Mr. Lindsay examined the file of Mr. Midgley today. There were no unusual circumstances to merit a more severe penalty except that at the time of the offence, the accused was 19 years, a minor.

MORE SERIOUS

"The courts always take a more serious view when a minor is involved," said Mr. Lindsay.

When Magistrate Thomas was asked for comment on the Midgley sentence, he said:

"I disagree deeply on this... he (Midgley) just disagrees because he is in the labor movement... his court appearance left much to be desired."

The magistrate was asked why he forwarded a copy of Mr. Gagliardi's written appeal against the sentence to Mr. Lindsay and not the letter written by Mr. Midgley.

"It was sent, Lindsay had the right to do as he pleased on the matter."

"Young Midgley was out of place in showing you this trip... regarding this visit... the press will be out as far as I am concerned."

Magistrate Thomas was asked to explain why he recommended a lessening of the time of Mr. Gagliardi's suspension. "I received a letter from Mr. Gagliardi and turned it over to Mr. Lindsay. What he

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver paper, backed by leading British Columbia citizens, has appealed to British Columbians to join in asking Cuban rebel leader Fidel Castro to stop the executions in his country.

The newspaper quoted support for the appeal from Dr. N. A. M. Mackenzie, president of the University of B.C.; Mrs. Theresa Galloway, president of the Vancouver Council of Women; Attorney-General Robert Bonner of B.C., and Bill Black, president of the B.C. Federation of Labor.

The paper said it hopes the appeal will bring to the revolutionary government of Cuba the "knowledge that the blood bath is alienating free people."

"A BLACK EYE"

Dr. Mackenzie termed the executions "ghastly" and a "stinking business" which will give Castro a "very bad black eye."

Mrs. Galloway added: "I don't know that anything we can do will help, but the whole world should rise up and protest the actions of the Cuban rebels."

Said Attorney-General Bonner: "The Castro regime is doing itself a disservice by permitting this spectacle to continue, and certainly people are justified in calling upon him to immediately restore the rule of law."

The six pallbearers included two Queen's counsels, a cabinet minister, the Victoria city solicitor, a royal commission counsel and Mr. Sloan's private secretary.

There were 14 honorary pallbearers including Premier Bennett and leaders of B.C. government and industry.

The official pallbearers were:

W. T. Straith, QC, R. A. Wootton, QC; Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston; Charles Locke, former counsel to the Sloan Commission; T. P. O'Grady, Victoria city solicitor, and Capt. F. G. Hart, Mr. Sloan's secretary.

Honorary pallbearers were: Senator Walter Farris, former lieutenant-governor; Clarence Wallace, Powell River Company executive; Harold Foley, H. R. MacMillan of MacMillan-Bloedel; Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, Premier Bennett; Times editor Bruce Hutchison; Times publisher Stuart Keate; Justices Sherwood Lett, A. C. DesBrisay, H. W. began in 1948 when the Coach Lines began operating from bus bays linked with the Canadian Pacific Steamships' wharf at Nanaimo.

Today, Vancouver Island Coach Lines operates runs to West Saanich, Sidney, Cordova Bay, Nanaimo, and Up-Island points.

In the mid-1940s, the company operated six city transit lines, representing one-third of the city's transit system. These lines were taken over by the B.C. Electric in 1950.

Mr. Pasfrott said the Coach Lines will be able to load as many as four buses, nosed in, at the Black Ball offices. Traffic surveys indicate the buses won't create a traffic problem, even when Washington State Ferries operate their Victoria-Port Angeles service in June to September.

Washington State Ferries will operate the east side of the Black Ball Building. The Coach Lines will operate the west side. Executive, ticket and express offices will be located on the main floor.

V.I. Coach Lines now has about 100 employees. Buses not in operation will remain at the company's mechanical depot, located behind the Empress Hotel laundry plant.

does it is up to the department."

The magistrate read a copy of his letter to Mr. Lindsay which had an enclosure written by Mr. Gagliardi in reference to his appeal against a three-month suspension. The letter was dated Jan. 14.

A quote from the letter by the magistrate:

"The minister has no one to blame but himself in this matter. He showed a lack of courtesy to the court in not attending in person when he would have been given the right to speak."

"Had Mr. Gagliardi appeared in court and had explained the circumstances in the enclosed letter, there is no doubt the court would have shown consideration to the merits of his appeal."

In conclusion, I want to point out that Mr. Gagliardi was accorded the same privileges and penalty as was given to any similar offender, regardless of race, color or creed." It was signed by the magistrate.

Three New Senators Named by Diefenbaker

(From Times News Services)

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Diefenbaker has strengthened his party's minority standing in the Senate, naming three new senators, including an engineer experienced in northern development and two lawyers—one an old friend from Saskatoon.

His announcement, made just after Thursday's formal opening of the new parliamentary session, brings to 19 the Progressive Conservative strength in the 102-seat upper chamber.

The new senators: John Hnatyshyn, 50, Ukrainian-born lawyer in Saskatoon, a long-time supporter of the party in Saskatchewan who has known Mr. Diefenbaker for years.

John Alexander Buchanan, 51-year-old head of an Edmonton engineering and construction firm, who has had long experience in engineering and building in northern Alberta and the Northwest Territories.

John G. Higgins, 67, a lawyer in St. John's, Nfld., and former opposition leader in the Newfoundland Legislature.

Their appointments cancel out remaining Senate vacancies for their provinces and leave six vacancies: three from Quebec, two from Nova Scotia and one from New Brunswick.

Conservative membership in the Senate still is overshadowed by the 74-member Liberal majority. There are also two independent senators and one independent Liberal.

Session marked the introduction of several new members, including Mrs. Jean Casselman, Progressive Conservative MP for Grenville-Dundas, Ont. Mrs. Casselman, the Commons

Redistribution Due for Study

A committee may study a number of redistribution of federal ridings.

The Throne speech said the government proposes that the standing committee on privileges and elections review the Elections Act in preparation for "subsequent legislation."

For the last 20 years it has been normal practice for this committee to meet in the second session of a Parliament to consider the Elections Act.

In 1955, the committee asked the government to prepare a report on methods of redistribution of constituencies in other countries. The government now has this report but it has never been presented to the committee.

CHARLES E. REA

... reappointed

In a unanimous action, the Commons reappointed Charles E. Rea (PC-Toronto Spadina) as its deputy chairman. In the absence of Deputy Speaker Pierre Sevigny, his job is to preside when the commons is in committee of the whole House.

The committee on agriculture will be asked at this session to consider the tough problem of humane slaughter of animals.

The question "of ensuring the use of humane methods in the slaughtering of animals" is to be referred to the standing committee.

An indication of the delicacy of this problem is the fact that this is the third straight session during which the question will have been raised.

The government intends to make permanent certain supplementary pensions to former civil servants and members of the armed forces and RCMP.

The supplementary pensions were granted at the last session of Parliament for those who retired at pensions below current levels. They also were extended to widows and children of the men involved.

The increases varied and were based on length of service.

The place of Indians in Canadian life will be studied during the session. A joint committee of the Commons and Senate will review the Indian Act and the administration of Indian affairs.

Citizenship Minister Fairclough said earlier she planned to propose that the committee

ANNUAL REPORT

RCMP Force Can't Meet Crime Boom

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCMP says a general upward trend in crime is piling up cases faster than it can add men to the force.

And there is growing pressure for the organization to perform as a tourist attraction.

The RCMP handled 283,460 investigations in the year ended last March 31, an overall increase of 19 per cent, says the annual report of Commissioner L. H. Nicholson, tabled today in the Commons.

"While the increases are not as sharp as last year, the upward trend persists," he said. The increases were "spread generally throughout the country with no major crime pattern present other than a rise in the number of breaking, entering and theft cases."

The commissioner said the number of RCMP cases had increased by 73.7 per cent in the last five years while the regular staff increase had been only 15.3 per cent.

TOURIST ATTRACTION

Reporting on the "growing pressure to present the force as a tourist attraction," he said:

"While it may be a compliment to realize that visitors to Canada are anxious to see men in our traditional uniform, I feel that this tendency must be kept within reasonable bounds.

"If we go too far in meeting this demand, it over-emphasizes parade and 'show' features at the expense of police work, which is and must remain our primary function. I am also convinced that morale would be affected if we permitted the uniform and reputation of the force to be capitalized on unreasonably in this respect."

The report shows that offences under the Criminal Code rose to 68,462, up 22.9 per cent from 1956-57 year; investigations of federal statute infractions—smuggling, bootlegging and the like—increased 23.2 per cent to 58,451, and those under provincial statute to 156,547, up 16 per cent.

FEWER MURDERS

The force concluded 272,577 of the 283,460 cases, terming 93.3 per cent successful. It attributed the increase in Criminal Code cases—largest in recent years—to perjury and false pretences charges arising from investigations under Alberta's Gas Royalties Dividend Act, more driving offences and more break-ins.

Murder cases dropped to 34 from 44 a year earlier. Traffic and liquor cases continued to account for most cases under provincial statutes.

At March 31, the total RCMP strength—regulars, civilians and special workers—was 7,001. The regular personnel numbered 5,111, compared with 2,620 at the end of the 1946-47 year.

The number of horses used by the force continued to decline and at March 31 there were 197 left on strength—down eight from the previous year.

Winter Arena for UBC?

VANCOUVER (CP)—The possibility of construction of a $500,000 winter sports arena at the University of British Columbia here is being investigated by a committee headed by UBC building and grounds superintendent, Tom Hughes.

Hughes said the arena would contain two ice surfaces, one for curling and the other for ice hockey and skating. It also would have an adjacent enclosure to house a 25-yard swimming pool.

Plans would call for completion by September, 1960. Hughes and his committee will report their findings to UBC board of governors in February and, if approved, construction probably would start immediately.

Speech From the Throne

AS USUAL, THE SPEECH from the throne in Parliament tells us little about the Government's legislative program. A substantial list of policies is outlined in general terms but their real meaning will not be revealed until actual legislation is introduced later on. This is the customary practice but in the case of the present session the whole basis of government policy remains in doubt.

For the important question, affecting all others, is how the Government proposes to meet the financial crisis produced by its deficits and its inflation of the currency. The speech from the throne sheds no light on that question, probably because the Government has not made up its own mind.

Clearly a struggle is under way in the cabinet between those ministers who feel that somehow the current deficit must be reduced in the next year and those who are little alarmed about inflation. This contest, not an unusual thing in any cabinet, must be resolved before the budget speech is delivered in the spring.

It is not resolved, it is left completely open, in the speech from the throne. Yet few of the problems before Parliament in this session can be approached, much less settled, until a basic decision on finance has been reached.

Meanwhile the Government promises among other things the creation of a National Energy Board, based on the report of the Borden Commission. Whether this is a wise policy or not will depend upon the nature, powers and personnel of the board.

It could be useful in recommending broad policies in the fields of electricity, oil, gas and coal. It could do great harm, and probably collide with the constitutional powers of the provinces, if it attempted a detailed regulation of the fuel industries, as the Borden Commission seems to intend.

The Government proposes to lighten the burden of recent freight rate increases and to remove rate discrimination between various regions. How this is to be done the speech does not say, and how it can be done without subsidies to the railways it is difficult to imagine. Yet Mr. Howard Green has already announced the Government's flat and unalterable rejection of subsidies. This riddle will be answered in due time.

Another important experiment, a new system of crop insurance, is forecast but its details are withheld. There will be more funds for low-cost housing, the amount not specified; changes in the unemployment insurance system, presumably to raise its benefits and possibly its costs; a Bill of Rights ineffective as against provincial legislatures; and assistance to exporters by way of Government credits.

Highly significant is the brief announcement that the existing system of federal subsidies to the provinces will be continued for another year. The provinces had expected much more than that and had been promised a new Federal-Provincial conference. Has the Government already abandoned its plan to redistribute the whole revenue field?

Again, what does the Government intend by amendments to the present law covering trade practices? Does this cryptic statement mean that the Government proposes to repeal the law against retail price maintenance, which it attacked in its days of opposition? If so, it will undoubtedly face a bitter debate in Parliament and strong protest from the nation's consumers.

It is far too early, however, to judge any of these matters. The real contents of the sessional program, especially the budget, have yet to appear.

Part of Our Life

THE ACHIEVEMENT OF THE Victoria Symphony Orchestra has been unrivalled in any other Canadian city of comparable size. Through the years since Mr. Hans Gruber took charge, the orchestra has made steady progress until now it is one of the major forces in the cultural life of the community.

Such a situation has not arisen by chance. It is due directly to the work of the conductor, the members of the orchestra, and the Symphony Society which sponsors them. But quality cannot exist without financial support, so that a great deal of the credit for Victoria's achievement must also go to those who by their ticket purchases and their outright contributions have supplied the funds to pay for the Symphony.

No symphony orchestra can exist entirely on its income from performances. In every case extra help must come from the generosity of donors who underwrite the annual expenses of the group.

Victoria is no exception. Of a yearly budget of $72,000, the local organization takes in approximately $30,000 at the box office. This leaves about $40,000 to be made up from other sources—from city grants and the contributions of individuals—and the Symphony is at present facing a considerable deficit.

A campaign is planned to meet this emergency. Many residents of Greater Victoria will shortly be asked to purchase season tickets to the Symphony concerts—not a charitable request but a definite undertaking to give full value for payment received.

It is to be hoped that there will be a spirited response to this appeal. The Symphony has gained too big a name for itself, too important a place in our community, for any thought of collapse to be considered for a moment. The orchestra will deliver full value, both to ticket purchasers and to the life of our city.

Gone Far Enough?

THE WATCHING WORLD, which had held little sympathy for the fallen dictator Fulgencio Batista, has become worried by the excesses of the Cuban rebellion's aftermath.

With executions beyond the 200 mark, one wonders how much justice enters into the summary trials of those accused of crimes against the revolutionaries. It may well be that many deserved punishment, but it is equally likely that innocent persons may have been the victims of the rebels' victory.

It is difficult to assess the situation from abroad, and certainly affairs on the island are the business of the Cubans and not of outsiders. But a continuation of the current bloodbath must eventually antagonize mankind—however much Batista may have been disliked—and get the new Cuban Government off to a bad start with the rest of the world.

Cuba is a small country, dependent on foreign customers for its prosperity. Mr. Fidel Castro might profitably rest content with his successes to date, and refrain from alienating his global neighbors by turning reform into retribution.

Green Light on Library

GREATER VICTORIA'S PUBLIC Library problem—to find a way by which the institution serving the whole community will become the property of the whole community—has moved a step closer to solution through the statement of Reeve George Murdoch of Oak Bay.

The reeve says his municipality is "likely to sign" the draft agreement framed to achieve the desired goal.

Details have still to be discussed. In principle, however, the municipality seems ready to assume its share of financial responsibility for the building in which additions were made in recent years.

The significant part of the proposed arrangement rests on the understanding that the municipalities will guarantee this support for a definite period of years—until 1971. In effect, they are already making their contributions through payments for library service. Certain adjustments would be made with the adoption of the new agreement, but, from present prospects, they would be negligible.

The municipalities stand to benefit from the plan by acquiring voting rights on the library board. That is as it should be.

While previous approval of the proposal has come from Saanich, Esquimalt, and Central Saanich have yet to reach a decision.

If Oak Bay swings behind the plan, the endorsement of the two smaller regions may be expected.

For the library itself, the new agreement offers promise of ability to make long range plans rather than to carry on improvisations from year to year.

THE TIMELESS DECEPTION

'Is Worth an Age Without a Name'

By B. A. TOBIN

A NEW law in Connecticut says that women may lie about their ages, thus legalizing an almost universal custom. There are still a few restrictions, however. The lies are only acceptable by insurance companies taking statements of age from women, and the women may not claim to be more than three years younger than they really are.

The new legal situation gives rise to some interesting speculation. How will the authorities know that a woman is stealing only three years from the correct total? Will she have to give her real age and her sworn age? How long will it be before every insurance company automatically adds three years to every woman's statement of age, on the theory that all of them will take advantage of the law?

How will this be received by women who are really 38 and say so, but are naturally assumed therefore to be an actual 41?

Some nasty situations could arise from this legislation, and it is doubtful if the law-makers have pursued the possibilities to the farthest limits.

If for the last 15 years a woman has been deducting five years from her age as her natural right, will she now feel that she has the right to deduct an extra three, making eight?

Will 15-year-old women ride the buses for 12-year-old children's fares?

Will 100-year-old women assert in vain that they are centenarians, the public assuming as a matter of politeness that they are really only 97?

Obviously this law is going to create more problems than it solves.

It would have been far better to leave the whole question on a tacit basis, as it always has been, with one's personal judgment determining just what discounts or premiums to employ when considering a woman's age. (And who but a cad would even consider it?)

If the insurance companies wanted to play safe, they could have handled the problem much better by employing women to deal with women clients. For who, with or without the aid of the law, can make a shrewd estimate of a woman's real age than a woman?

As the applicant for an insurance policy prettily announced her age as 29, the experienced underwriter, 45, female, would be accurately assessing it at its true value.

"Ah," she would be thinking without any sign that she was even looking at the victim-client, that is—"let me see now. Slight crowsfeet, couple of wrinkles, noticeable waist spread, hair touched up a little, hands, hmmm, yes the hands... Shall we say 37-38? Yes, I think 38."

So down in the records the woman's age would go as 29 (38), and that would be that.

Simplified Process

The matter of a woman's age has, of course, always been a mystery to men. Perhaps that is why men give it so little consideration.

While a woman is rapidly going through intricate mathematical computations to arrive at the true age of the woman she has just met, a man in the same position merely puts her into one of three classifications. He thinks of her as 1, about the age of my daughter; 2, about the age of my wife; 3, about the age of my mother.

These three categories cover all cases, and while they ignore any attempt at detailed analysis they certainly cut down the risk of catastrophic error.

Even with such rough approximations, of course, the average man is not free from the chance of a mistake. When grandmothers frequently look like granddaughters, and mothers sometimes look like either, it is obviously impossible for the male observer to form any firm opinion as to age, and any attempt to do so would be foolhardy in the highest degree.

Three Ages

Shakespeare has written of the seven ages of man; a woman really has only three. There is the age that could be proven by reference to her birth certificate, and of this the least said the better. There is the age she looks, kept as low as possible for as long as possible by every device and artifice of nature and the multi-billion-dollar cosmetic industry. And there is the age she wishes she looked, which may occasionally be the age she acts and even the age she feels.

Obviously, a woman lives a complicated life, far more complicated than that of a man. For a man's seven ages are lived one at a time, but a woman's three are lived concurrently.

Possibly only for one fleeting moment, somewhere in her late teens, perhaps at her coming-out dance, do all three ages fuse into glorious unity. For a little while, like three planets in orbit, they hold their close position. Then slowly they separate, almost certainly never to meet again, and their owner takes up her lifelong career of mathematical wizardry.

In the Opinion of Our Correspondents

Beyond Reason

Assessment on my lot in Saanich, which was $350 in 1954, had climbed to $450 by 1958. A 29 per cent increase in four years was high but comparatively reasonable. But the assessment for 1959 is $960—a jump of 113 per cent within one year—and is ridiculous on any grounds. Whether the municipality blames it on the province is irrelevant—the people in charge of our affairs are floundering incompetently. Such abrupt and fantastic changes would have no place in any province or municipality that was being ably administered.

Appreciative Brutes

In your report of my light-hearted "off the cuff" remarks to the Victoria branch of the Musicians' Union which appeared on Monday I am quoted as referring to some English newspaper music critics as "brutes."

What I was trying to convey was that their standards were of the highest and I would not like to leave the impression that they are unfair or cynical. In fact I have found that, like anyone else who hears a great deal of music, they are only too pleased when they hear something really good.

What About Public Market

There is considerable anxiety amongst the stall holders and their customers at the local market, as to what is being done about the problem of another building, if, as and when, the present old building is torn down. It is to be hoped that this matter is not being neglected.

There is a definite need for a market for fresh produce in Victoria, perhaps, a smaller more compact and comfortable building.

There is a definite need for the city to do something for this small band of free enterprisers who have hitherto supplied this need, as testified by the varied customers who appreciate and make use of this service including bishops, civic leaders, amateur gardeners, old Chinese Canadians, new Canadians and visitors to the city, many of whom may be noticed any Saturday. They obtain fresh chickens, eggs, portions of mounds of Sooko shrimp, crabs, flowers and plants, and good advice on growing of same, from our good citizens and friends the stall holders. The stall holders ask nothing more than the opportunity to make a modest living.

We owe it to them... What is being done about it? DONALD H. SEYMOUR.

Sweepstakes

There have been at least two notices in the press recently that members of Parliament intend to bring up for debate in the current session the matter of authorizing sweepstakes in Canada for assistance to hospitals.

It is to be hoped that the subject will receive favorable consideration and that action will be taken as soon as possible to render assistance to institutions so vitally necessary to the welfare and health of the nation. It has become quite evident from press reports of the financial difficulties of hospitals in this Province that they are having a hard time to make both ends meet, to say nothing of providing extension of services and equipment necessary to keep up with advances in medical knowledge.

An authorized sweepstake plan properly conducted so that the public would have full confidence in the method adopted would not only provide large sums of money for the purpose but would do away with the sale of tickets for the same purpose from another country, which has to be conducted under cover as it is illegal.

This creates the anomalous condition that although the sale is illegal, those lucky enough to win a prize are not penalized in any way, nor are their winnings subject to income tax. This does not make for respect of our laws.

The subject is well worthy of public support and the members of Parliament introducing it will undoubtedly have a large part of the population behind them in their efforts. It would be a

Curtain Call

SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL took the stage in politics again in London the other night when he made personal arrangements to meet the executive of his constituency party.

He spoke about the election, the pound, and foreign affairs, and revealed that he had recommended Mr. Macmillan to the Queen when she was choosing the new premier two years ago.

Of the election he said they had to organize themselves for it "some time this year or next" but for his part he was "rather doubtful whether it is going to be so swift and sudden as is made out."

Sir Winston was addressing nearly a hundred members of the executive of the Conservative association of his constituency—Woodford, Essex. The meeting took place at the Kensington Palace Hotel, where he had invited the executive to meet him.

Sir Winston, in congratulating the executive on its work in the recent party recruiting drive, said:

"We owe a debt of gratitude to those of you who have borne the heaviest burden, rallied our workers when spirits have been low, and spurred them on to renewed efforts as the tide has turned again in our favor. . . . We must not relax now. Now we have to organize ourselves for the general election some time this year or next. . . . the Conservative party have very good hopes throughout the country."

We had to stand firmly on our own feet and pay our way in the world. It was because we had done that in the past seven years that our affairs had prospered. A country like ours, so dependent on its overseas trade for its existence, must inevitably face difficulties from time to time. When these difficulties and changes arose the task was too important for any vacillation, or weighing too high any political advantage.

Sir Winston said: "I had the honor to be asked by the Sovereign for my opinion as to the choice of prime minister. I recommended Mr. Macmillan and was most delighted to see it was acted upon."

Stern Remedies

In the autumn of last year the government under Mr. Macmillan did not hesitate to apply a number of stern remedies to master the economic difficulties which threatened us. The Conservative party paid the price at the time in votes lost at by-elections but the country benefited by the restoration of world confidence in our currency. And today the country was showing its appreciation in the growing support it was giving to the government and party and increasing confidence it was displaying in them.

"Over the years I have found that in the long run the politician and the party that wins the most support is the one that sets out to do what it believes to be right, not what it fancies will be immediately popular."

Another and rather harder lesson he had learned was that the British people were reluctant to give any party a vote of gratitude for what had been done.

The transformation in our affairs since 1951 had been marked and wholly beneficial "but do not, I beg you, believe that the electors will give you their votes solely on that account. It is a vote of confidence rather than a vote of thanks we seek."

Hats Off

The Victoria Kiwanis Club wishes to say thanks to all Safety Patrol members.

After 23 years of operation the public has become accustomed to seeing schoolboys and girls in their familiar yellow uniforms serving at all school crosswalks adjacent to the many schools in Greater Victoria. These patrols operate every school day of the year.

On occasions, when temperatures drop below the freezing point and the ground is laden with snow, these youngsters could be forgiven if they preferred to renege their expected duty.

It was obvious during the recent inclement weather that they realized, regardless of the severe conditions, their work of accident prevention must continue. Throughout the entire period they were at their posts the required number of times each day. They served well.

Again, Kiwanis says hats off to all members of our Junior Safety Patrol and many thanks.

W-G—Then and Now

A recently published letter by Mr. J. A. A. George was a commendable, public-spirited effort to again caution us about the Wenner-Gren Peace River penetration, as several press editorials have raised pertinent questions on this matter with equal concern in the past.

There is emphatic need for caution and the most exhaustive investigations, without prejudice, regarding the Wenner-Gren syndicate's exploits encouraged by Premier Bennett and his colleagues.

Order-in-Council P.C. 845 (Feb. 3, '42) published in Canada Gazette (Feb. 14, '42) disclosed the name of Axel Wenner-Gren as a "resident of Mexico" and on the list of "Specified Persons" with whom Canadians were prohibited to trade; then considered to be in the "enemies of Canada" category. According to (then) Secretary of State Flinn.

These ratings did not constitute the virtues of potentially trustworthy friends of Canada, then. What sound reason have we to assume that Mr. Wenner-Gren's motives or commercial aims here are beyond question now?

Ten Score Years Ago...

THE historians in our business are reminding us that September 12 will mark the 100th anniversary of the Battle of the Plains of Abraham. They wonder how Canada should celebrate the occasion.

I haven't any strong views on the matter. I'm inclined to agree, though, with a distinguished Canadian writer that we shouldn't re-enact the battle in historical tableau and thereby risk blowing life into the dying or dead embers of an ancient Anglo-French animosity.

We of the Times news staff will probably honor the anniversary with a repetition of procedure followed each year. At our annual dinner and party next month we'll very likely wind up with Humphrey Davy leading us in "Alouette." It's the one time in the year when we show our bilingualism, make our personal gesture to that part of Canada which speaks French, and it's an infallible way of ending any party.

The 200th anniversary will also, perhaps, give some of us first-generation Canadians occasion to wonder why we feel like Canadians, if we do. We won't find any firm answers. We may, though, identify ourselves a little more closely with what some people call the mystique of Canada.

Why should I, the son born to a Bradford, Yorkshire, printer, and a Bradford, Yorkshire, weaver, in Victoria almost half a century ago, feel emotionally stirred by standing on a rocky point jutting into the Ottawa River just because I consider it the highway of the old coureurs de bois and the early explorers?

Why should the names Cartier, Champlain, Frontenac, Radisson, Groselliers and Verendrye ring with magic cadence in my mind?

Why should an islander, reared off the coast of British Columbia with the salt water of the Pacific in his veins, dream his dreams of adventure when he gazes down from an aircraft flying over the water routes fingered through Ontario and Manitoba that were the canoe paths of French Canada?

Why should a man who turns to his native earth only under the compulsion of a wife's spring gardening urge, hold an abiding respect for the habitant farming his forefathers' strip on the St. Lawrence?

Why should a Pacific Coaster unconsciously imbued with many of the west-of-the-Rockies prejudices, warm to the casual friendliness of a French-Canadian maintenance worker pointing out the Gatineau view from the top of Ottawa's Confederation building?

In almost 50 years I have spent two days with a French-Canadian family and then only as a guest unable to follow the domestic conversation. Yet they and their people seem close to me. Geographically we could scarcely be further apart and be in the same country. In faith and background we are strangers. But I somehow feel a debt to them because their antecedents came to the Rock and there began to create a nation.

This is strange thinking for a Victorian. He belongs to the nation of British Columbia, a country which so often considers itself separate and distinct from that area of land and water stretching eastward from the Alberta foothills. His particular "nation" owes its origin to the Englishmen who cruised by with Cook and Vancouver, to the conglomerate race, predominantly Scottish, which was the Hudson's Bay Company under Douglas on the coast.

Where then the affinity? Maybe through more imaginative history texts covering the period of New France and the men and women who hacked out footholds on the St. Lawrence and in Acadia. The old names form a chain to some of us more binding than any transcontinental line of railway steel.

Perhaps, also, a sense of Canadianism is born in the homely rhymes of William Henry Drummond: "De fader of me, he was habitant farmer, ma gran'fader too and hees fader also."

Conceivably it stems from the glory boyhood built around other gallant figures, Aurel Joliat, Howie Morenz, Pit Lepine and workmen with hockey sticks who have helped to make Canadian a singing word not only in sport.

I don't pretend to understand my ethos, don't know that I have to, I'm just sort of pleased that they happened to pass mine out to me when they were handing them around.

UN CORRESPONDENCE

Compromise

NEW YORK—A significant easing of the Western position on East-West talks was indicated at a background briefing for correspondents held in New York. The briefing indicated willingness on the part of Western nations to broaden the scope of current discussions and was interpreted as possibly indicating greater willingness to hold summit talks.

The briefing was given by a highly authoritative Western source of talks recently concluded in Geneva on means to avoid surprise attack. The Western official said that these talks were "helpful" and he expressed hope that they would be resumed "as soon as possible."

The significant part of his statement was a suggestion that the terms of reference of these talks be changed to cover political as well as technical problems.

In the past, the Western nations, the United States in particular, have insisted that conferences be preceded by detailed talks at the technical level and that political talks be held only after technical discussions indicate a reasonable chance of success. The main intention has been to prevent the Soviet Union from using a conference table as a propaganda platform.

The Russians, on the other hand, have argued that agreement on technical matters can be reached only after over-riding political barriers have been cleared away. The West now appears prepared to compromise. It is assumed that this willingness to compromise might also apply to proposals for summit talks.

There has been considerable speculation about the possibility of a summit conference to discuss Berlin and the over-all German situation, speculation which has been heightened by the current trip to the United States of Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan.

Meanwhile reports from the surprise attack conference were released at the UN. These reports showed, for example, that even in the age of the inter-continental missile, aerial reconnaissance can perform a useful role in detecting war preparations. The reports also indicated limited usefulness for satellites as reconnaissance vehicles.

Western experts have pointed out privately that it would be impossible for an aggressor to rely on any single weapon, such as an inter-continental missile, in launching a surprise attack. An attack would have to achieve almost complete destruction of the enemy and the experts say that this would require a co-ordinated blow with all available weapons. This would involve elaborate preparations which they say could be detected by reconnaissance. The reports released at the UN followed this line of thinking.

One said in its conclusion: "Faced with the increasing probability of detection, the aggressor must make the choice between achieving surprise and risking that the attack may be too small to be fully effective. Hence he is less likely to mount an attack."

The report also states that a detection system would lessen the danger of "pre-emptive" attacks—an attack launched because one nation has become convinced that the other is about to attack.

In discussing the detection capabilities of satellites and aircraft, the Western experts suggested that objects in the 75 to 100-foot size range could be identified from an altitude of 150 miles, the approximate altitude at which surveillance satellites would orbit. This compares with identification of five to 10-foot objects from aircraft at 50,000 feet and one to two-foot objects at 5,000 feet.

Western experts also proposed use of aircraft equipped with radar, infra-red equipment to detect sources of heat, magnetometers to detect electromagnetic emissions, infrared photography to detect certain types of camouflage, as well as ground observers.

Soviet reports however charged that these proposals represented a "rather blatant" attempt to obtain military information.

The general reaction at the United Nations was favorable to the indication that the Western nations would be willing to broaden the terms of reference for discussions. It's recognized that Soviet representatives have often used conferences for propaganda purposes but many representatives have suggested privately that the United States was being excessively cautious in demanding preliminary technical talks.

FINLAYSON ON WENNER-GREN

Just How Much Has He Spent?

B.C. Progressive Conservative Leader Deane Finlayson Thursday challenged Premier Bennett to show records of what the Wenner-Gren Corporation actually has spent on northern B.C. surveys.

"I challenge him to present sworn records of what the corporation has spent in the Rocky Mountain Trench to develop its potentialities."

Mr. Finlayson said the $2,000,000 valuation placed on the work was far too high.

He marvelled that Wenner-Gren, with a cash outlay of $250,000 in the formation of Peace River Power Development Ltd., should emerge with $8,000,000 in shares.

The party leader addressing less than 40 persons at a Victoria association meeting, said the Swedish tycoon had come here with unknown assets, no customers and "not a mile of transmission line."

He has ended up with control of the 4,000 horsepower of the Peace—"greater than the installed sources of power of the remainder of the province."

The $8,000,000, said Mr. Finlayson, "is the price we will be paying to be told the Peace River has water in it."

He said this was accomplished with "collusion and connivance—get those words right"—but he did not say who or what was involved in the deed.

Mr. Finlayson dealt at length with power matters, maintaining the revolt of H. Lee Briggs against the government power policies wouldn't have occurred if there had been any leadership offered in power development.

'No Power Policy Suits Socreds'

"The government has no policy because it suits its convenience not to" but it does not suit the convenience of the B.C. Power Commission, the B.C. Electric, West Kootenay Power and Light Company or the people of B.C. "who have yet to get one major source of cheap power."

"The people of B.C. are fed up." He said there is a strong shift in political support away from the government. He referred to polls of various areas of the province, some of which were favoring the Conservative party. But he noted, there is a large segment of undecided voters.

Victoria, he felt, had the largest percentage of undecided voters in the province.

The leader cautioned his audience: "The number of people attending political meetings indicates the relative position of any political party. If a small meeting occurs often, you can be sure you are not doing enough."

Fishermen's Loans to Run 3½ More Yrs.

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming today gave notice of legislation that would extend provision of the Fisheries Improvement Loans Act for 3½ years to June 30, 1962.

The application of the loans act expired last Dec. 12. A government notice of motion to the Commons gave no details. Under the act, fishermen may borrow up to $4,000 for boats or improvements to fishing gear. The loans are guaranteed by the government and interest rate set at 5 per cent.

The loans by the chartered banks are repayable in from one to eight years, depending on size.

Jaguar Production Hits All-Time Mark

COVENTRY, Eng. (Reuters)—Jaguars of Coventry produced more cars last year than in any previous year and sent more than half of them overseas, the company has announced.

"Exports to the vital American and Canadian markets reached a record sales value in excess of $22,000,000," a spokesman said.

"In Europe sales broke all previous records, having increased by 42 per cent compared with the previous best year, 1957."

ARROW 'SHOT DOWN' FOR LACK OF STAMINA

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. defence officials said privately today that main reason for the continued refusal of the United States to buy Canada's Avro Arrow CF-105 fighter plane is that it cannot fly at top speed long enough.

The officials said further that the U.S. hardly could buy the Arrow from Canada when it has suspended production at home of two very similar aircraft, the F-106C and the F-106D.

Direct Hit Scored By Bomarc Missile

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP)—A $1,000,000 Bomarc guided missile launched from a new test centre Thursday scored a direct hit on a jet drone flying 87 miles out over the Gulf of Mexico.

The success of the test mission was announced by the air force after the 47-foot interceptor missile roared off from a launching shelter at nearby Santa Rosa Island.

This was the first launching from the multi-million dollar centre.

The Canadian government decided last year to introduce the Bomarc into the Canadian air defence system. No bases have as yet been established on Canadian soil.

The current Bomarc has an announced range in excess of 200 miles but Boeing has announced a new model will be able to fly 450 miles.

The missile can carry an atomic or conventional warhead and is designed to intercept and destroy enemy bombers and missiles miles from their targets.

KEY WEST, Fla. (CP)—A Royal Canadian Navy Banshee jet fighter crashed into a mangrove swamp Wednesday while trying to land. The pilot, Sub-Lt. J. J. Veronneau of Tracy, Que., was slightly injured.

Boosts in Education Aid Sought by Opposition MPs

OTTAWA (CP)—The country's education needs—especially those of universities and students—may be discussed extensively this session.

In notices of resolutions, three members of the Commons today proposed various ways of assisting education.

Paul T. Hellyer (L-Toronto Trinity) proposed that the federal government consider establishment of a system of national scholarships and bursaries, to be awarded after open competitive examinations. He also proposed a university loan fund to supplement scholarships and bursaries.

The proposals are in line with Liberal party policy calling for 10,000 scholarships and bursaries a year, supplemented by a loan fund.

Mr. Hellyer mentioned no figures in his resolution. Augustin Brassard (L-Lapointe) asked for income tax exemptions for sums paid in tuition fees and books at the university level.

Douglas Fisher (CCF-Port Arthur) called for larger federal grants to the provinces "for the expansion and equalization of educational opportunity across Canada."

NEW CHAIRMAN of Victoria Esquimalt Union Board of Health is Esquimalt representative R. H. Wickes. Mr. Wickes, also a school trustee, succeeds Coun. G. K. Sammon of Esquimalt.

FIRST TIME

Court Asked To Rule On Strike

Labor Minister Lyle Wickes turned a labor dispute over to Supreme Court Thursday in a history-making move.

He took the action under the never-used Section 54 of the Labor Relations Act. The court will rule on the legality of a strike by 400 IWA workers of Flavelle Cedar at Port Moody.

The strike began Thursday. If the court rules it is illegal, the minister may cancel the union certification and the existing contract.

The labor minister wanted to test legality of a strike which occurred in December, but it was settled before reaching court.

Columnist Free For at Least Another Year

NEW YORK (AP)—Columnist Marie Torre will not be asked again in court for at least a year to reveal the source of an item she wrote concerning Judy Garland, the actress' lawyer said Thursday.

Miss Torre, radio-television columnist for the New York Herald Tribune, completed a 30-day jail term Wednesday on a contempt charge for refusing to answer the question.

She had faced a possible new sentence if she again had refused to answer.

Algeria Denied Home Rule

PARIS (AP)—Prime Minister Debre today ruled out independence for rebellion-torn Algeria or political negotiations demanded by the nationalist rebels.

He told the National Assembly that before his government leaves office Algeria "will be more firmly welded to France" than ever before.

However, he still refused to commit his government and President de Gaulle to complete integration of the North African territory with continental France, the demand of the French colonials in Algeria and the extreme right wing of France.

Debre spoke to the deputies before they started a vote on the program for his new government.

ROYAL PAIR INVITED TO SOOKE

An invitation will be sent to Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip to visit Sooke during their tour of Canada this summer.

Tourist committee of Sooke Jordan River Chamber of Commerce will ask the secretary of state to extend the invitation. It is hoped the Royal couple may have a taste of Sooke barbecued salmon, or even attend the annual All-Sooke Day celebrations.

Ice-Trapped Ships Find Path to Sea

QUEBEC (CP)—Eight of the 13 ocean freighters trapped for a month in ice-clogged Montreal harbor were still in the upper St. Lawrence River early today but with the prospect of clear sailing to the Atlantic.

Six of the eight were at Quebec City and the other two at Trois-Rivieres, 70 miles upriver.

The remainder headed unescorted for the St. Lawrence Gulf, reporting light ice conditions and easy sailing in the broad channel of the lower part of the river.

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP)—W. C. (Billy) Burns, former star with Cornwall teams in the old National Lacrosse Union, died in hospital Wednesday after a long illness. He was 83.

ernment which he presented Thursday. In his statement then he renewed de Gaulle's offer of last October to negotiate in Paris with rebel leaders for a cease-fire in Algeria.

Debre also denied rumors that contacts looking toward cease-fire negotiations had been made with the rebel Algerian government-in-exile in Cairo.

There was no immediate response from the rebel high command. But it had flatly rejected de Gaulle's first offer, saying it would meet only with the French in a neutral country and for discussions on Algeria's political future.

OUTDOOR REPORT BY Doug Peden

Ontario may be on the threshold of taking a radical step in the field of game management. The men who decide the fish and game policies of the province are giving a lot of thought to the possibility of setting hunting regulations for three-year periods.

In past years, Ontario has followed the same policy that has been in effect in British Columbia, announcing one-year seasons on upland game birds and game animals during the summer. Season on ducks, geese and other game birds are set on a year-to-year basis by the federal government.

Biggest flaw in the present system is that the sportsman who is compelled to select dates for his annual vacation well in advance is forced to do a certain amount of guessing if he wants to start his holidays with the opening of a shooting season.

Ontario's outdoors brass believes that a long-term system would be of considerable assistance to the hunting public and would also be helpful to resort operators and outfitters.

If adopted, it will be interesting to observe how the scheme works out because there has always been a certain amount of campaigning in our neck of the woods for earlier information on hunting seasons.

Biologists Prefer Present System

However, it is probable that biologists will wage a successful battle to keep the present system, since there are many factors which can affect game populations up until a couple of months before shooting starts.

For instance, a freezing, snow-filled February could seriously deplete deer herds, and a soggy, sunstarved June could play havoc with pheasant and grouse chicks. And there is always the possibility that disease will take a heavy toll.

In B.C., hunters only have to do a small amount of guessing. Shooting seasons have been opening on corresponding weekends for several years, and if game populations are sharply reduced, it is probable that hunting pressure would be eased by trimming bag limits rather than by switching opening dates.

Still, the B.C. game branch might be able to do away with a bit of red tape and make shooting season announcements a bit earlier. An extra two weeks in which to make preparations would be appreciated by a good portion of our hunting fraternity.

Don't start planning for mooring space at Oak Bay just because the breakwater project has once again been revived. Government wheels are inclined to turn with maddening slowness. The breakwater from Turkey Head to Mary Tod Island, which will be a boon to small-boat owners, will eventually be a reality, but it will be surprising if it is completed for several years.

Anglers hoping to fill a few limits of grilse or winter springs may not find a better time to try their luck than during the next few weeks. Fishermen at Saanich Inlet are currently enjoying their best sport of the winter and Oak Bay anglers are having one of their better winters.

Fishermen operating out of Brentwood are consistently knocking off grilse limits in waters around Willis Point and Senanus Island, and hooking a good number of springs between Tod Inlet and Willis Point.

Evening traffic has been heavy around the mouth of Tod Inlet, where springs have been the most active.

At the Goldstream end, grilse and springers are hitting lures regularly from the island up through the narrows.

Art Midlane grabbed the lead in the January salmon competition of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association last Sunday, when he came in at Brentwood with a 15½-pound spring. John Rose picked up a 10½-pounder off Tod Inlet Wednesday evening.

Frost Might Improve Steelheading

Fish are bigger off Oak Bay, where springs are running between 12 and 20 pounds. Most of the Oak Bay regulars have been returning with at least one fish and some of the better catches have been made only a short distance from the Oak Bay Boathouse. In a couple of weeks, twilight fishing for springs should be good in shallow water off the mouth of Bowker Creek.

Big concentrations of grilse are still showing off Crofton, but the young salmon have been finicky in their tastes. Best lures appear to be either Coronation or green-and-white bucktails or Kam lures, trailed near the surface, or small spoons for deeper fishing.

Some fast action with springs has been reported near Thetis Island and at Comox Bay.

Waters are a bit high in most streams on Vancouver Island's east coast, but steelheaders are beaching a fair number of fish. The sea-going rainbows are scattered through the length of the Cowichan River and any deep back-eddy is worth a try. Trout are adding to the excitement at the headwaters of the Cowichan.

Almost all the larger streams, especially the Cowichan, Nanaimo, Oyster and Quinsam, are holding steelhead and things could get hot if we have a few frosty nights to drop water levels.

Don't forget the annual meeting and trophy presentations of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association at Club Sirocco Monday night. Members will be asked to decide on policies for next summer's fishing competitions.

Grid Paupers Ask for More

WINNIPEG (CP)—Western football clubs scrimmaged Thursday on the question of how much rich clubs should give the poor. The result: no decision.

Canada's two major football leagues did a lot of ground work but made few spectacular gains as they completed the first of their two-day sessions before going into the second annual meeting of the Canadian Football League.

The Big Four and the WIFU ran through several minor reports—including those from minor leagues, the commissioner and the league statisticians—leaving the meat for

They Know Route To Pay Window

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Julius Boros and Billy Maxwell, who both know well the way to the pay window, led a packed field into today's second round of Bing Crosby's $30,000 golf tournament.

Boros, former United States Open champ, and Maxwell, former amateur king, caught fire with a string of birdies on the second nine holes of Thursday's opening round to shoot five-under-par scores of 67.

That gave them a one-stroke advantage of U.S. Open champion Tommy Bolt and young John McMullin. Nine others were tied at 69.

Each of the 150 pros competing for the $4,000 top prize also is teamed with an amateur in a bestball event with $2,000 awaiting the pro on the winning team.

Al Balding of Toronto paced Canadian entrants with 37-34-71.

Gerry Magee of Toronto had a 35-37-72 and George Knudson of Toronto and veteran Stan Leonard of Vancouver each had 74s. Knudson had 38-36 and Leonard 39-35.

Moe Norman of Kitchener, Ont., ran into plenty of trouble on the first nine and took a 43 to finish with an 18-hole total of 81.

Leonard and singer Gordon Macrae had a best-ball of 69 in the pro-amateur competition.

JOCKEY'S FUTURE IN DOUBT

End of Riding Road for Ted

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ted Atkinson's career as a jockey was ended today when he agreed to retire from riding on the recommendation of Dr. Alexander Kaye, medical adviser for the Jockey Guild.

Hampered by a chronic back ailment, the 42-year-old Toronto-born saddle star was forced to the sidelines at Tropical Park earlier this week and decided to fly back to New York for a thorough examination by Dr. Kaye.

Asked if this meant he was considering retirement, Atkinson replied: "That decision will rest with Dr. Kaye."

Atkinson, who has ridden 3,795 winners in 21 years, suffered a severe back injury at Saratoga several years ago. He has been wearing a corrective brace ever since but lately it has failed to help him.

Rated one of the most intelligent riders of his generation, Atkinson may apply for a position as an official with the New York Racing Association if he is unable to ride again.

SOLUTION MONDAY

1919 BOSTON DISASTER

Wave of Molasses Drowned 2 Blocks

BOSTON (AP)—It was Wednesday, Jan. 15, 1919. Clocks ticked off the noon hour in Boston's busy north end.

The everyday bustle of activity echoed along Commercial Street, the north end's cluttered Avenue of trucks, autos, bicycles and wagons.

A group of children romped beneath a huge tank—35 feet high, 98 feet wide—that towered over the Purdy Distilling Company plant. It contained 2,500,000 gallons of molasses.

A guard shoed the youngsters away. The clocks' hands moved on toward 12:30.

BACK TO THE TANK

Mothers beckoned children to lunch. One, Mary DiStasio, 11, ran back to take another look at the molasses tank.

A city laborer, Michael Sennott, sat down to lunch with five companions in the nearby public works yard. He munched on a ham sandwich.

A moment later, with only a muffled rumble as warning, the great molasses tank erupted.

An almost inconceivable tidal wave of sticky, black liquid spewed over two city blocks with such force it hurled trucks against buildings and crumpled houses.

Husky teamsters, attempting to flee the fluid fury, slipped, rose, slipped again, and were engulfed.

The bursting tank hurled bands of steel over the area. Some smashed against the Boston Elevated Railway's up-rights, splintering them. Train service was halted on the nine-mile stretch between Charlestown and Hyde Park.

A dozen horses attempting to flee were swallowed up in the slithering mass.

Engine 31 five house collapsed, trapping two firemen. Comrades rescued them after two hours.

At one point the molasses ran 15 feet deep.

COUNT THE TOLL

At 3 p.m. rescue teams and police were able to determine the toll.

Little Mary DiStasio's body was found beneath four feet of molasses. The public works yard was a blanket of molasses. Sennott and his companions were dead.

In all, 21 persons perished, 40 were injured and the damage ran to millions.

TANK FAULTY

Lawyers for 125 plaintiffs charged the company had constructed a faulty tank, that it was not designed to hold more than 2,600,000 gallons.

The company claimed it was the victims of anarchists, that a bomb had been placed in the vat.

Municipal court Chief Justice Wilfred Bolster blamed public officials for the disaster.

On April 29, 1925, after a 10-month trial during which 3,000 witnesses were heard, the plaintiffs agreed to settle the case for $1,024,000.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer, will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Joe Jones, aged 12, of Asheville, N.C., for his question:

Who Discovered the Yard, the Foot and the Inch?

In 1324, King Edward III of England took time out from his troubles to decide what the length of the inch should be. It was settled as equal to three dried barleycorns, grains of barley, placed end to end.

Henry II decided what the yard should be. He measured from the tip of his outstretched arm to his nose. In the 16th Century the Germans came up with an ingenious way to settle the length of the lawful foot, one-sixteenth part of a lawful rood, or rod.

A surveyor was told to stand at a church door on Sunday at noon. He was to take aside the first 16 men, tall and short, as they came out. They must line up with their 16 feet toe to heel one behind the other. The total length was taken to be a lawful rood; one-sixteenth of this measure was taken to be the lawful foot.

During the Middle Ages, there were many such haphazard methods for finding standards for the inch, the foot and the yard. After all, long measures are man-made. There are no such units in nature. Counting in whole numbers was easy. Anyone can tell where one sheep ends and another begins. But the length of a yard, where it begins and ends, are matters of opinion.

The Romans solved this problem with standard measures. These units were kept in a temple in Rome and copies of them used throughout the far-flung Roman empire. But when Rome fell, these standards were lost. The various peoples of Europe had to make up their own measures and more often than not they did not agree with each other.

Names Have Many Sources

The names of our units of long measures come, some from the Roman units that were lost and some from the haphazard English system. The word mile is coined from Latin words meaning 1,000 paces. A pace was a double step, about equal to five times the length of a man's foot. The word inch comes from the Latin meaning a twelfth part. Acre comes from the Latin meaning a field.

The word foot came from old England. Yes, and it was about equal to the length of a man's foot. The word yard, also from the English, then, as now, equalled three feet. The rod, pole or perch measure referred to the pole used by the plowman to plow his first furrow. The furlong meant furrow long, the length of a furrow. This is not so haphazard as it seems, for in feudal days each farmer owned a small strip of land and furrows were all more or less the same length.

Some of these old measures have fallen into disuse or are used only to express distance in poetic terms. The rod, still used in land measure, is 5 1/2 yards or 16 1/2 feet; 40 rods make a furlong and eight furlongs make a mile. Three miles make a league and seven leagues, as everyone knows, make a giant stride—though that last one never got into the table of long measure.

Andy sends a Hammond's International World Globe to Kim Koster, age 8, of Norfolk, Neb., for his question:

Does Andy answer all the questions he gets?

Pixies are supposed to be able to do a lot of impossible things, and your Andy is a pixie. However, not even Andy could answer all the questions he gets, there are far too many of them. The job could not be done by even 50 pixies. Goodness, no.

What he does is to choose two questions to be answered in his column each day. He tries to choose questions that a lot of his friends will enjoy. This means he must select popular questions, those asked by a lot of people—and this part of his work often gives him a headache.

Maybe 40 or 50 persons ask, why is the sky blue? or, do fish sleep? The question should be answered, but who should be selected? That job is left up to Andy alone. The letter or card must have name, age and address. It must be clearly written and often a little extra politeness helps.

The customer is offered a bargain. It's made possible because blind workers in the Vancouver CNIB centre have assembled all the bolts and placed them on cards. The saved labor costs are turned over to the customer.

DRAUGHTY
Miss Johnson set up her stall with special government permission three days ago and says she will stay on the job until Feb. 28—expiry date for 1958 licences. It's a draughty spot but staffers have fixed up an alcove and on occasion bring her hot coffee.

She thinks it's worth waiting for the nut and bolt business to pick up.
The people passing will realize they can see the CNIB sign—and the people they help when they buy a card of bolts often can't even see the sun.

FBI Foils Extortion Bid on Movie Mogul

LOS ANGELES (AP)—FBI agents have foiled a $100,000 extortion attempt against the production chief of MGM studio.

They arrested 34-year-old Herbert Strauch as he sat Thursday in a telephone booth. Siegel said the man had threatened his life and that of his wife, Ruth, if he did not furnish the money in $100 bills. Strauch, unmarried, was born in Germany, came to the United States in 1947 and became a citizen in 1952. He has been employed as a pantryman in a catering service that serves MGM studio.

D. K. Brown, FBI chief here, said Siegel received a letter from Strauch Jan. 11, threatening him and his wife, unless they produced $100,000 within a few days. Brown said Strauch followed up with a series of telephone calls, made from telephone booths.

All booths in a wide area were placed under surveillance and the FBI arranged to be notified by radio when calls were made to Siegel. Strauch had not finished his conversation Thursday when officers arrested him.

Parents Blamed For Prejudice

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Brock Chisholm says the attitude of parents is preventing their children from becoming world citizens.

The former head of the World Health Organization told a home and school meeting Thursday night that parents, by imposing narrow loyalties on their children, are forcing them to discriminate against others on the basis of color, religion and ideology.

In the past, Dr. Chisholm said, this type of human relationship always led to war.

Oil Right Agency Urged by Probe

REGINA (CP)—A royal commission has recommended setting up of a government board to achieve voluntary "re-negotiation" of contracts between farmers and several oil and exploration companies, the Saskatchewan government announced today.

Attorney-General R. A. Walker made public the report of a royal commission on certain mineral transactions, established in 1957 after farmers complained that a half interest in their mineral rights had been obtained by fraud and misrepresentation.

The commission was against blanket legislation which would have cancelled all rights acquired in the transactions investigated. It said such action would "first not be justified on the basis of the evidence which the commission received, and secondly would run counter to the public interest."

"The commission is not satisfied that the evidence establishes that fraud or misrepresentation was in fact widespread or general," the report said.

FREE SPEECH DEFENDED

Tories Protest Argyle Censure

Victoria Progressive Conservative Association Thursday protested the official censure of Dominion Astrophysical Observatory technician Edward Argyle.

He recently publicly branded the U.S. Atlas satellite project a political stunt. An official reprimand was issued from Ottawa.

The party meeting at McBride Hall supported a motion by Mrs. A. Buell, 906 McLure, that a letter be sent to Prime Minister Diefenbaker defending the rights of free speech "for this minor civil servant."

"It is these little nibbles that can eat away at our freedom. We must fight every step of the way," said Mrs. Buell.

Sqdn. Ldr. Clarence Goode said the trouble comes from "idiotic thinking of old-time civil servants, who are dyed-in-the-wool Liberals. Diefenbaker and other Conservatives are not responsible for this nonsense."

Wording of the letter was left to the executive.

WORLD-ACCLAIMED YOUNG ARTIST ON ASSIGNMENT HERE

Genius Pays Off for 'The Most'

By A. M. THOMAS

Victoria was host Thursday to authentic genius in the person of Roloff Beny, born 34 years ago in Medicine Hat, now a photographer, painter and citizen of the world.

Genius is not a word to be tossed around lightly, but it has been applied to this artist by some of the world's leading authorities. More to the point, its implication stands out boldly, even to the amateur critic, in the few examples of his work he carries with him.

Lives in Rome

Now living in Rome, Mr. Beny came to Victoria in the execution of a commission from the English super-slick magazine "Queen" to picture the Pacific coast, a folio that will be one of a series he is doing, "The Most," portraying people "fixed or in flight."

Others in the series have been taken in Rome, Venice, London, New York and Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal, the latter three as one unit. The Victoria Art Gallery was another attraction since the visitor, on another commission, is compiling a review of the art museums and their curators on this coast.

A painter since he was 15, the young-looking Canadian became a photographer almost by accident, with the purchase of a second-hand camera in Spain, a few years ago. With it he took photographs in lieu of sketches and subsequently showed them to an English publisher when he returned to Rome.

The outcome, after more pictures and much negotiation, was a monumental publication, "The Thrones of Earth and Heaven."

In essence, the book is a picture of all the Levantine countries, from Spain to Syria; their ruins and works of art. The London Times hailed it "as refreshing as a journey through time."

A French edition was brought out and then a German, the latter running to two editions comprising 35,000 copies.

Text for the book was supplied by such notables as Jean Cocteau, Bernard Berenson, Rose Macaulay, Freya Stark, Stephen Spender and four directors of the Louvre.

$20 a Copy

The Canadian edition was published recently by Longman, Green and will be available in Victoria soon—at $20 a copy.

Tall, dark and with all the traditional characteristics of an artist, Mr. Beny is a dedicated man of decided opinions and convictions which he states with emphasis, if necessary.

He was innocently asked: "Do you now consider yourself a photographer first or a painter?"

"How can you tell from one day to the next," he replied with some asperity.

"Why should a man define himself as this or that so long as he is open to impressions and learning."

"For the artist the search has to come before the goal and each goal is the beginning of another search."

Leaving here Thursday

night for Los Angeles, Mr. Beny will be the guest of Sir Lawrence Olivier in Hollywood, resume his "Most" series and then come back up the coast.

Book on Canada

His next big undertaking will be a book on Canada similar to that on the Mediterranean, one which may take years to complete.

Commissioned by his English publishers, the work will employ his dual talents as painter and photographer and will, he hopes, cover completely such (since Emily Carr) virgin ground as the Queen Charlotte Islands and the west coast of this island.

To come to earth with a crash, it may be said that genius pays.

Schooled in Lethbridge (where his parents now live), at Trinity College, Toronto, and Columbia University, he won a Guggenheim scholarship, one of a very few Canadian artists so honored, and went to Rome to live 11 years ago.

He now lives in the top floor of an ancient palazzo overlooking the Tiber where he maintains 11 rooms, two studios, one for visiting artists who are also accommodated in five of the rooms.

Rooms for Artists

He also keeps, on a year-round basis, pied-a-terre in New York (an apartment), and Waterton Lakes, Alberta (a log cabin, complete with Siberian husky dog).

"Who occupies these places when you are absent?"

"Oh, friends, visiting artists," he says airily; "they're always open."

You'd recognize Beny as an artist just to look at him.

When your reporter saw him he saw for the first time in his life a man wearing a tie to match his suit, a small black and brown check, of conservative cut.

"But you'll notice," said the visitor, "that the pattern on the tie is just a shade smaller than that on the suit."

Crowd of 750 At Optimist Bingo Night

A crowd of 750 attended another of a series of bingo games Thursday night in Central Junior High School under sponsorship of Victoria Optimist Club.

The $200 first prize was shared by co-winners Mrs. J. Evans, 1676 Derby Road, and Mrs. A. Patterson, 2730 Blackwood. Winner of the $50 prize was Mrs. B. Hoffman, 1283 Centre Road.

There was no winner of the $250 jackpot for $300, since no player filled a card in the stipulated number of calls. The jackpot will be increased to $400 with 54 calls at the next session Feb. 5.

Miss Aletha Stelek played organ selections during the evening, and members of the Solarium Junior League served refreshments.

Four-Year Plan Put to Saanich

$950,000 Financing Proposed

Saanich council is considering a $950,000 four-year financing plan to provide essential administrative facilities for the expanding municipality.

The plan, prepared by comptroller-treasurer John Tribe, calls for expenditures of $150,000 for development of a new municipal yard, $150,000 for new fire hall and police station, and $650,000 for new municipal hall.

Mr. Tribe said the financing plan would work no hardship upon ratepayers if steps were taken now to finance the required administrative facilities.

ECONOMICAL BASIS

"It would be wise for council to look ahead and to plan their requirements so that they can arrange financing," he said. "They can be carried out on an economical basis."

He said the projects would not affect the borrowing power of the municipality.

Mr. Tribe proposed that the projects be financed as follows:

1. Appropriation of $230,000 from tax sale lands' fund which would be used to assist in financing all three projects;
2. A $100,000 short-term loan (repayable in four years) for the new municipal yard;
3. Provision in the budget of $50,000 a year for four years for construction of a new municipal hall;
4. Appropriation of $100,000 from surplus funds;
5. A $320,000 money bylaw to be submitted to ratepayers in December, 1961 for the new municipal hall.

NEED REPAIRS

Mr. Tribe noted that the Douglas Street No. 1 fire hall and municipal yard were old and need extensive repairs if not replaced.

Mr. Tribe considered a new municipal yard "imperative in the interest of efficient administration."

"Construction of a new hall should start in four years," he said. "By that time the present quarters at Royal Oak will be severely overcrowded."

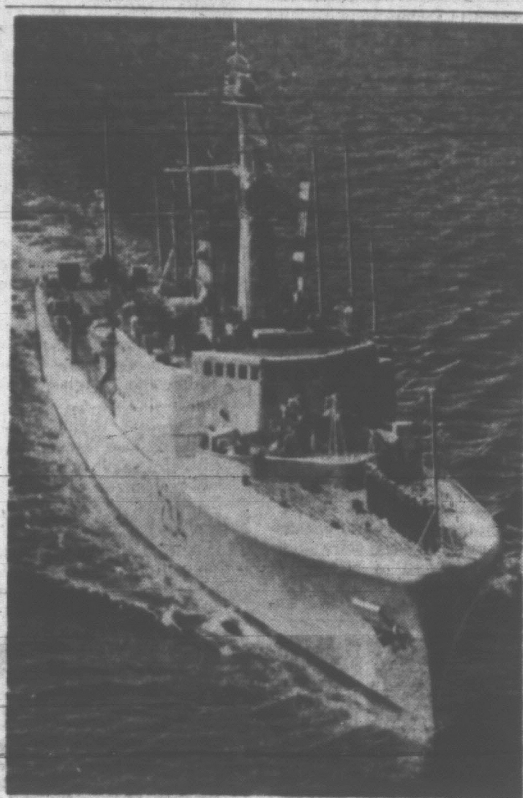

152% BOOST

He noted that the population of Saanich has increased from 16,811 in 1941 to 42,300 in 1958, or 152 per cent.

The capital Region Planning Board estimates that it will reach 59,000 in 1968 and 75,000 in 1976," he added.

Reeve George Chatterton said he was impressed by the report because it would not affect to any extent the borrowing powers of the municipality.

"Most of the funds would be raised by savings and using surplus and land sale funds," he added.

'Big Switch' Plan Nears Final Phase

Final phase in the RCN's "Operation Transfer" involving seven destroyers will start Monday at Esquimalt and Halifax.

The improved Tribal class destroyers—Athabaskan and Cayuga will leave at 9 a.m. for Halifax, where they will join the Atlantic Command.

On the same day, the St. Laurent class destroyers Assiniboine and Ottawa will leave Halifax to join the Pacific Command.

The former west coast ship Crescent is already at sea, and will meet Assiniboine in San Diego, where the ships' companies will change ships between Feb. 13 and 20.

HERE MARCH 20

Crescent will proceed to Halifax and Assiniboine to Esquimalt, the latter ship arriving here March 20.

Ottawa will arrive at this port March 18.

Athabaskan and Cayuga will reach Halifax Feb. 16, and the crew of Athabaskan will take over Saguenay and the crew of Cayuga will move to St. Laurent.

Saguenay and St. Laurent are due to arrive at Esquimalt April 6.

"Operation Transfer" is being carried out to make the Second Canadian Escort Squadron based here a "one class" fleet, and to increase it from six to seven ships.

Assiniboine, commanded by Capt. J. C. Pratt, senior officer of the squadron, will be leader to HMC Ships Marg-aree, Skeena and Fraser (based here since commissioning) plus the former Atlantic Command ships St. Laurent, Ottawa and Saguenay.

When she leaves Halifax, Assiniboine will be flying the traditional "paying off pennant" because her crew will be leaving her at San Diego.

She will fly about 375 feet of narrow hunting, based on length of the ship plus an additional foot added for each month of service over two years.

NAVAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

New Glasgow returns Jan. 30. Sussexvale, Stettler, Anigonish, Beacon Hill, Jonquiere return Feb. 6.

Fraser, Margaree and Skeena return March 20. Crescent goes to Atlantic command.

New Waterford returns 4 p.m. Jan. 23.

Jardar Lauvaas, 2133 Spring, altered his plea to guilty in mid-trial Thursday and was fined $250 for impaired driving Dec. 14.

The accused had pleaded not guilty to the charge read in Saanich police court, but after evidence was given for the Crown by a doctor and one constable, defence counsel James Proudfoot entered the new plea.

University School Music Master To Succeed Steed at Cathedral

Richard Proudman, 28, music master at the University School, Victoria, has been appointed organist and choir-master at Christ Church Cathedral, Dean Brian Whitlow announced today.

He succeeds Graham Steed, who resigned from the post last year after nine years at the cathedral.

AT ST. MARY'S

A distinguished church musician, Mr. Proudman came to Victoria three years ago and, besides teaching at University School, has been organist and choir-master at St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay.

He lives with his wife and three children, at 1602 Richmond.

Dean Whitlow said applications for the cathedral post were received from leading organists and choir directors in many parts of the world, from a total of five different countries.

"Just before Christmas, the short list had been reduced to seven," he said. "Since then, we have conducted many personal interviews in Victoria and elsewhere to make sure of selecting the right man."

The Dean said Mr. Proudman

has already made a considerable reputation for himself as a church musician and in the musical life of the city as a whole.

"We are looking forward with much pleasure to welcoming him to the cathedral staff. His conception of the function of music in the worship of God is thoroughly sound, being both imaginative and constructive."

"He will have a great contribution to make at the cathedral."

NOT SOUGHT

The Dean emphasized that, as Mr. Proudman is transferring from another church in Victoria, he wished to make it clear that his application was not sought by the cathedral.

"When Mr. Proudman applied, his qualifications were considered simply on their merits in open competition with all others."

Archbishop Harold Sexton said he was very pleased at the appointment.

"Mr. Proudman is young but he shows every sign of being able to rise to the responsibility which is being given him."

DEGREES

The new cathedral organist holds the following degrees and qualifications: BA (Cambridge), MA (Trinity College, Hartford, Conn.), MSc (Cambridge) in Musicology and Organ Performance; LRAM (pianoforte accompaniment) and ARCM (organ performing).

While at King's College, Cambridge, he studied under the famous Dr. Boris Ord and later C. H. Trevor, organist of Lincoln's Inn and professor of organ at the Royal Academy of Music in London.

Mr. Proudman's previous appointments include those of assistant organist at Rugby School, England, and lecturer in music and choir director at the Royal Normal College for the Blind.

ASK The TIMES

Q. How many Section 80 ballots were cast by persons not on the voters' list in the Dec. 15 Trail by-election and why were they not opened or counted?—W.M.G.

A. Ballots cast under Section 80 of the Elections Act are limited to persons who swear an affidavit that they were left in error from the voters' list. In this circumstance, the returning officer accepts a ballot sealed in an envelope. Following the election, the names on the affidavits are checked against the master list of registered voters. If the name appears on that list, the vote is accepted. If not, the envelope is unopened and destroyed after one year. In the Brandon Trail by-election, 30 votes, but only 6 of these were found to be valid.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem about to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Hon. Ellen Fairclough Wore Blue at State Dinner

By ELIZABETH FORBES

The story in the newspapers Thursday that Citizenship Minister Ellen Fairclough, first woman to become a federal cabinet minister, was among 100 high-ranking guests (all male) at a State dinner in Rideau Hall on the eve of the opening of Parliament, left out one important detail—as far as women are concerned.

Elizabeth

What did the Hon. Ellen wear?

Always ready to help in an emergency, our Canadian Press representative, Tommy Cuff, sent a query over the wires to Ottawa.

This is the reply: A sheath gown of ice blue slipper satin with flowing panel from the shoulders.

Tall and slight, with blue eyes and fair hair touched with grey, the Minister of Citizenship must have been a striking picture in that all-male assembly.

His Excellency Governor-General Massey was the host. Mrs. Fairclough is the first woman to attend such a pre-Parliament function as a guest, with one notable exception.

Queen Elizabeth was host at Government House at the last State dinner in October, 1957, when she opened the 23rd Parliament of Canada. That was a special occasion and husbands and wives attended.

I was privileged, with 11 other newspaper men and women from many parts of the world, to have a preview of the banquet room at Rideau Hall at that time.

Life-size paintings of the late King George VI and Queen Elizabeth (now the Queen Mother) are on the wall facing the entrance arches. Paintings on the other walls are of former governors-general.

Pale gold and deep crimson red predominate in the decor. In an anteroom, where dinner guests are first received, a full-length painting of the late Queen Victoria—in her younger days—dominates the scene.

On that special occasion in October, 1957, flowers used for decoration on the tables were yellow and white chrysanthemums, arranged in silver bowls in such a way that they looked like fluffy pincushions.

Light from crystal chandeliers shone on snowy white damask tablecloth and napkins; sterling silver; Crown Derby china, white and gold, and delicate crystal water goblets and wine glasses.

At the State Dinner this week, appointments would be much the same, but the flowers, with spring just over the horizon, were daffodils and narcissus.

Similar Occasions In British Columbia

British Columbia has seen two women sit with the cabinet ministers at State dinners in Government House.

The first, in 1950, was the Hon. Nancy Hodges (now a senator), who had just been named Speaker of the House—the first woman in the Commonwealth to receive such an office.

Mrs. Hodges' presence at the state dinner caused quite a stir.

Tall and stately, with perfectly coiffed grey hair arranged in the close-cropped manner she had found suited her best, Nancy (as she is known to everyone) chose for that occasion a black evening dress, classically cut with heavy bead trim outlining the low-cut neckline. A floating panel extended from the left shoulder. A two-strand pearl necklace was her only jewelry.

Col. the Hon. Charles A. Banks was lieutenant-governor—and the host.

State dinner on the night of the opening of the Legislature in 1953 saw the late Tilly Jean Rolston seated with cabinet ministers in the dignified, state dining room at Government House.

Col. the Hon. Clarence W. ...

lace was lieutenant-governor at that time.

Sworn in as British Columbia's minister of education late in 1952, Mrs. Rolston was Canada's first woman cabinet minister.

The Hon. Tilly loved clothes. She was always smartly dressed and had, on occasions, been called the Clare Booth Luce of British Columbia politics.

The gown she chose for this momentous occasion was black nylon net over taffeta, ankle-length to show her gold slippers. Multi-colored Karaschi embroidery was used to trim the bodice and on rippling godets in the skirt. A black net stole completed the ensemble.

Just as Nancy Hodges had done before her, Tilly Rolston made history as Canada's first woman head of a government department.

Only two women in Canadian history had ever sat in on the highest councils of government before the late Mary Ellen Smith, and served as a B.C. cabinet minister—but without portfolio, and Hon. Irene Parlyb, one-time minister without portfolio in Alberta.

Mrs. Parlyb recently celebrated her 91st birthday.

Tasty Miniature Loaves Make Me Forget Diet!

By PENNY SAVER

Oh! How my mouth watered as I stood outside a certain bakery this morning and gazed with hungry eyes at the tremendous display of goodies in the window! It was all I could do, to keep from rushing in and ordering a dozen miniature rye loaves or a tasty seed cake.

Luckily, Josephine Lowman has me under her guiding finger. Result—the eight-week marathon.

Nevertheless, I've a mind to sneak a nibble or two from those perfectly shaped "little loaves" because they're even better hot, I'm told! They're five cents each... and so-o-o tempting!

What's this? A January sale on scones? These particular tasties are excellent spread with strawberry jam and served with Sunday afternoon tea! A dozen (and they're large) costs just 35 cents.

Thick sugar-icing tops fat tea buns to give them a taste that is out of this world! Toasted to a light golden brown, these buns would be a hit at your house, I'm sure. They're five cents each.

For Spring Evenings: Jungle Flowers in Silk

Victoria Daily Times FRIDAY, JAN. 16, 1939 15
LOUISE DAVIS

Big, bold and beautiful silk prints will dazzle the eye at night during early spring. The color combinations are as stunning as the prints themselves; emerald-and-blue comprise a favored combination. But jungle flowers in olive greens, lilacs and mauves are used as well in softer colorings.

The spring evening gown may be either short or long; both are being shown in designer collections. But even the short dresses are given a very formal handling which makes them correct for wear on elaborate occasions.

And the evening coat has come into its own again. A winter success, it is blossoming for spring as good companion to gowns done in matching silks and prints.

The designs shown here were outstanding in the recent New York unveiling of spring fashions by the nation's leading designers.

From Pauline Trigere's Spring, 1939, collection is this velvet dinner dress and matching coat—awhirl with a profusion of jungle flowers vibrantly printed on crisp silk surah. The coat has wide, fan-shaped sleeves which balance the slimmest of the silhouette, gathering onto the shoulders in a cape effect.

Impressionistic blue flowers splashed on sheer silk is the theme of Nettle Rosenstein's short evening dress from her first new collection for Spring, 1939. Loose butterfly sleeves dramatize the smooth bodice line of the sheath, which is covered by a sheer tunic in twin-printed silk organza.

Densely patterned with swirls of primeval green roses on pure Swiss silk in Harvey Berlin's Spring, 1939, short evening dress. It is gently rounded with a standaway flange bodice and an Empire waistline indicated by a diagonally placed bow from which balloons a wide panel-pleated skirt.

Round Clock and Calendar Fashions Appear on Scene

NEW YORK (AP) — Designer Adele Simpson suggests that women should choose their clothes for year-round wear.

To prove it can be done, the small but mighty Adele, now generally considered the best-known designer in the U.S., shows a collection of round-the-clock, round-the-calendar fashions that will be sold in stores this spring.

Kiwaniannes Elect Head

Mrs. T. George Megaw was elected president of Oak Bay Kiwanianes at annual meeting in the Dunlevy Street home of Mrs. Mack Harris. Vice-president is Mrs. F. G. Usher; secretary, Mrs. C. H. Mann and treasurer, Mrs. A. E. Newton.

Conveners include Mrs. W. Young, welfare; Mrs. G. Farmer, program; Mrs. F. W. Batholomew, social; Mrs. W. T. Pearson, phonics; Mrs. A. D. Johnston, sick visiting; Mrs. H. C. F. Reston, knitting and Mrs. A. Sutton, goodwill enterprise.

Annual reports showed special interest in welfare work including old-age pensioners, community services and Goodwill Enterprises.

Mrs. K. W. Brown presented retiring president, Mrs. E. J. Capling with an engraved coffee spoon.

Special Rules of Etiquette Prevail When Hartnell Designs Gowns for Royal Family

LONDON (UPI) — Royal dressmaker Norman Hartnell is the busiest man in London today dreaming up wardrobes for the royal family that will combine elegance with etiquette.

The record number of miles members of the royal family will travel globe-trotting this year has left the royal women with some worrying wardrobe problems.

The Queen Mother already is thinking about clothes for her trip to East Africa next month.

The Duchess of Kent and Princess Alexandra will require outfits of every kind for their extensive air tour to Mexico, Central America and Brazil a few weeks from now.

The most important wardrobe Hartnell has to worry about is the one Queen Elizabeth II will take when she goes to Canada in June to open the Great St. Lawrence Seaway.

Not all the outfits he is working on will be new models. Some are ones that have been worn before but will be remodelled to appear again.

For there is precious little extravagance in royal dress budgets at any time.

Anything that can be turned over to serve again always gets a fresh lease to save expense.

Even the superbly decorated evening gowns are carefully stripped of their rich embroideries before being cast off.

The sequins, diamonds and jewel-heads turn up later as the decoration on equally superb but more fashionable gowns.

But everything Hartnell designs for the royal women, whether new or just revamped, has to follow peculiar rules of etiquette.

Often etiquette comes before elegance.

Even if a royal lady would look wonderful in a wide-brimmed hat she has to wear an off-the-face model so that the crowd can always see as much of her features as possible.

Her skirts must be sufficiently long and full to enable her to get gracefully in and out of cars and up and down stairs without showing too much knee or an awkward "line" in the rear.

The royal hems are usually weighted so there can be no embarrassment in a merry Maytime — or any other — breeze.

Even colors bow to the royal rules of etiquette. Light shades are chosen wherever possible, again so that royal figures can be quickly and easily distinguished in crowds.

Black appears in public only when the royal family is in mourning.

But every one of the royal ladies packs a complete black outfit just in case a death occurs while she is travelling.

Gibson Girl Cover-Ups for Evening

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's the prim look versus the bare look in evening fashions for spring.

Designer Cecil Chapman revives the cover-up fashions from the Gibson Girl era for cocktail and dinner clothes.

Designer Luis Estevez slashes necklines so low that even his showroom models asked for protective hook and eye fasteners at the front of some dresses.

Miss Chapman's Gibson Girl group comes in black and white combinations — black, slim or accented — pleated skirts of crepe, either short formal or floor-length, worn with white tucked linen or chiffon blouses.

The blouses have the high, tailored collars and the long, cuffed sleeves typical of those worn by illustrator Charles Dana Gibson's fashionable ladies at the turn of the century.

Miss Chapman is one of the members of the couture group of the New York dress institute, previewing spring and summer clothes this week for visiting fashion editors.

Estevez, originally scheduled to show with the group, withdrew shortly before the openings for reasons unexplained.

In most collections, the long and narrow evening dress steals the show from the lush, bouffant. Estevez showed sheath-like formals with the skinny look relieved only by an attached short cape at the back. Famous for making revealing clothes, Estevez this season not only plunged necklines nearly to the waist but also slit the side seams of some long formals up to mid-thigh.

Short evening gowns outnumbered long ones in the Christian Dior collection. The firm's chief designer, Yves St. Laurent, stressed the "rounded line." Its high-waisted silhouette reflected last fall's custom collection in Paris, for which the house traditionally saves its splashy news-making numbers. The Paris spring collection will be shown the press Jan. 29.

Hemlines on the Dior daytime clothes were 17 to 18 inches from the floor, the same as most New York manufacturers are showing, although St. Laurent went against the Paris trend last fall and hauled skirts as low as 14 and 15 inches.

On Etiquette

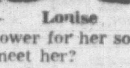

FORGET THIS SHOWER

My nephew is to be married to a girl who lives in the city where he was teaching before he left to study for his doctorate. After the wedding, the couple will live in my nephew's home town. Since the girl has never met friends of her fiancé's family, would it be correct for my sister to give a shower for her so that all could meet her?

LOUISE DAVIS ANSWERS:

I advise against a member of the family giving a shower, but entertaining with an "at home" or a tea would be appropriate. Your sister or anyone else in the family wouldn't want to oblige friends to purchase gifts. It might destroy the very purpose of giving the party. An "at home" can be delightfully social and I think that the bride would get off to a better start in her new home town by meeting her husband's friends at a showerless party. Invitations to a shower under these circumstances are often construed that gift-giving is more important than just being friendly and social.

DEAR ABBY

Time for a Switch

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband died leaving me with four children. Three months ago my daughter and her husband moved in for a vacation. Now I ask you, how long is a vacation? They push my things aside and bring out their own. My house is beginning to look more like theirs and less like mine every day. I love my daughter, but I can't take much more of this. Her husband bosses my kids around. My privacy is gone and my grocery bill is running wild. I feel I am being used, but how can I get rid of them before I crack up?

USED MOTHER.

DEAR USED: Tell your daughter THEIR "vacation" is over and now YOU'D like one. Alone. Either give it to them STRAIGHT or expect to wind up in a jacket by the same name.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend says we are "going steady." I expected a ring, or a bracelet, but all he says is, "I LOVE YOU." Is this enough to "go steady" on or should I insist on something I can show my friends?

GOING STEADY.

DEAR GOING: Don't "insist" on anything. Your friends will just have to take your word for it.

DEAR ABBY: The widow of a professional man sent out "thank you" notes unsealed, thus saving one cent on each card sent. These "thank you" notes were to friends and neighbors who were thoughtful enough to remember her deceased husband. I think this was a very cheap thing to do. What do you think?

A FRIEND.

DEAR FRIEND: It's not for us to judge who should save pennies and how. If the "thank you" note was sincere and prompt, who cares how much it cost to get there?

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, age 11, has an adorable little girlfriend—her own age who keeps asking her to spend the weekend at her house. My child is an only child and I want her to have friends but here is our problem. The girlfriend's parents run around on each other and I'm afraid if I let my child go there the children might be left alone all night. I can't

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Poor Posture Causes Protruding Abdomen

Q. "I am 14 years old. I know I am not overweight but my problem is my stomach. It is too large and I am embarrassed when I wear tight skirts."

A. You probably have poor posture. Remember to hold your abdomen in. Pull it back toward your backbone. Also take abdominal exercises. If you or any of my readers would like to have these, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for them to me in care of this newspaper.

Q. "My friend and I would like to know the correct weight for medium-framed girls 5 feet 2 1/2 inches tall and 14 years old. My friend weighs 108 1/2 and I weigh 97 pounds."

A. The correct weight is about 110 pounds. Your friend

Q. "I am 15 years old, 5 feet and 7 inches tall and weigh 131 pounds. My friends are always saying that I am too fat. Please tell me what you think."

A. Your friends are wrong. You are just exactly the correct weight.

Q. "My left hip is smaller than my right one. This is very noticeable in a bathing suit. What causes this and can you tell me how to reduce the large one? I am not fat."

A. It may be that your right hip is higher rather than larger. This could come from a spinal curvature. If so, corrective exercises are indicated but these must be done under the supervision of a highly trained individual. I suggest that you see an orthopedic physician and get his opinion.

Q. "I am 5 feet tall, small boned and 30 years old. I have four children. My skin is firm and I weigh 115 pounds. My measurements are bust 35, waist 25, hips 35 inches. I would like to know if I am overweight or if I just need waist reducing exercises."

A. As far as I can judge, your height, your weight and your measurements indicate that there is nothing wrong with your figure. Your waist is in perfect ratio to your hips and bust measurements.

Q. "A friend told me that the continuous use of a beauty mask will eventually cause lines and wrinkles. Is this true?"

A. Of course, it depends on the kind of mask. One reason for using a mask is to stir up circulation. I do not advise the daily use of masks. If the mask you use is very drying or stretches the skin, I suppose it could have this effect if used too often.

Better Deal For Under Privileged

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario's under-privileged children may get a better deal through the work of grey-haired Bessie Touzel of Toronto.

Formerly of Renfrew, Ont., and an expert on the history of Eastern Ontario's Renfrew County, Miss Touzel is chairman of a committee appointed by the Ontario government to study the standards of charitable institutions for children in the province.

Announcement of her appointment coincided with a report that Mrs. Bert (Mom) Whyte, who has long run a home for unwanted children at Bowmanville, Ont., was unable to regain custody of a child that had been placed with foster-parents at Englehart. But Miss Touzel says there is no connection between the two events.

$136,000 Goes To Marine Drive

Capital Improvement District chairman Everett Brown Thursday announced allocation of $136,000 for beautification projects in Greater Victoria.

The funds, disbursed through the commission by the provincial government, include $50,000 for waterfront improvements along Beach Drive, $50,000 for improvements near King George Terrace, $26,000 for erosion-stopping cement installations along the bluffs of Beacon Hill waterfront, and $10,000, mostly for boulevard work on Dallas Road from Belleville to the British Columbia Pilotage.

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant noted: "I feel this is a very good move to provide winter work and at the same time beautify the city."

The project will provide work for 100 men.

The CIDC recently provided funds for Kinsmen Gorge Park improvements worth $23,000, and $3,500 for Beacon Hill Park illumination.

The provincial budget for the current year allocates $200,000 for CIDC projects and further disbursements are expected before the end of March.

Aerial Hunt For Minerals Set in North

OTTAWA (CP)—Aerial surveys to locate minerals in Northern Ontario and Manitoba and the Keewatin district of the Northwest Territories will be a next step in the federal government's northern development program, it was learned Thursday.

A hint of this was contained in the Speech from the Throne at the opening of Parliament in the statement that money will be sought to continue current development projects and initiate new ones.

The present program includes spending $100,000,000 in seven years for development of roads in the Northwest Territories, a $65,000,000 railway into the Great Slave Lake area and a total of $7,500,000 over five years for each province matching the federal government contribution for roads to resources.

Boy Burned to Death

DETROIT (AP)—Two-month-old Julius Cash of Detroit was fatally burned Wednesday night in a fire apparently started by a candle used because the electricity had been cut off for non-payment of bills.

COMMAND CHANGES

'Goodbye' Parade For PPCLI Chief

Soldiers voices don't generally register emotion; just command and sincerity.

While the latter certainly predominated, there seemed to be a touch of the former in the voice of Lt.-Col. Thomas deFaye on Thursday when he said "goodbye" to his troops.

"It's wet and cold," said a bystander at the change-of-command parade for the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, "maybe he's just hoarse."

The "CO" has been replaced; new commanding officer is Lt.-Col. James Allan. In his few words to the battalion on the parade square at Work Point Barracks, he didn't elaborate. "I shall do my utmost to serve you well."

Col. de Faye, who heads from here to Norfolk, Virginia, for special training, after nearly three years as commanding officer of the Patricia's, spoke personally. "No commanding officer," he said across the wide parade ground without benefit of amplifier, "has had more intense support."

"These months... have been the happiest and most rewarding of all my years of service."

"I genuinely want to thank you for having made it so."

"One message I'd like to give you: continue as you always have. The reputation of the battalion is in the keeping of every one of you."

"These have been my proudest days, commanding the 1st Battalion..."

"A fair wish to you, and all your families, and God bless." Brig. C. B. Ware, commander, 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade, inspected the troops, accompanied by the two colonels. In his words to the soldiers, Brig. Ware, former PPCLI commander in the Sicily campaign, said "there is no greater honor, as true today as it was then, to head the Patricia's, because of the record."

The day was wet. Sentiment, warm.

New Italian Envoy Coming to Canada

TALKED HER WAY OUT OF DEATH

Doctor Outwits Armed Maniac

LONDON (AP)—A woman doctor talked for 15 minutes Wednesday night with a maniac pointing a pistol at her head.

The wild-eyed young gunman told Dr. Mary McHugh: "I have got to kill—you will do."

Dr. McHugh, 42-year-old mother of three children, had a number of patients waiting to see her at her home office in Camberwell district of south London.

Third to be called in was a man of about 24. She motioned him to a chair.

"I have a problem," he told her, whipping out a pistol. "I have got to kill someone. I'm not joking. I mean it."

Dr. McHugh smoothed her white surgical gown, went to the door and called to her 12-year-old son playing upstairs. "Christopher, stay where you are. On no account come down."

The man tightened his grip on the trigger.

"No, don't," said the doctor.

"Let's talk this over."

And she talked about anything that came to mind. "I know he was desperate and my only hope was to talk him out of it," she said later.

At first the gunman didn't want to listen. "I have just got to do this," he said.

The doctor kept talking.

Finally, the man got up and went to the door. "I shall be back," he said. "I must kill."

Then he vanished in the London fog.

SUNDAY, JANUARY 18, 1959

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)

Desires of acquiring more wealth than is yours currently, the astrological aspects are favorable, but you must be sure to adhere to the high-minded tenets which have proven successful in the past. Start by taking inventory of all assets.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Guilty of not laboring diligently enough to see fine results now, you feel that others are not friendly and want to take your disappointment out on them. Reflect instead, put wardrobe and other personal matters in order for fine things ahead.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—This day appears to be fraught with work, worries and trouble of some sort or another. But this is only a challenge to see how you meet tensions. Rise above them and labor methodically. Also good time to lend a helping hand where needed.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21)—Your closest relatives and friends are just as concerned about their affairs as you are about yours. Don't expect them to foolishly sacrifice in order to assist you. Paddle your own canoe and smile. P.M. is fine for fun and joy then.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Conditions about you will really be a pain in the neck if you pay any heed to grumpy associates with personal troubles. But do give a word of comfort where needed. And voice that helpful suggestion that gives you a practical solution to problems.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Utilize that fine discriminatory sense now to investigate what puzzles in everyday associations and you increase earning power and personal magnetism. Later, be a sort of balancing rod to others by speaking gently and quietly.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Be sure not to pay attention to that intuition which would lead you to sever relations with one whom you love very much. Go off for a delightful day instead at the amusements which bring greatest solace. P.M. be happy. Have fun.

Trade reports indicated small lots of flax had been bought for European countries, with Holland the only destination specifically mentioned. Flax prices were irregular.

Oats and barley dealings were slow and mainly involved routine domestic shipping orders connected with feed supplies. Prices moved narrowly.

Rye trade was quiet and prices irregular.

No information was available on overnight export loadings of Canadian wheat. Class two, IWA and domestic wheat prices, basis local head, all were up one-quarter cent from Thursday.

New Gas Field Indicated by Well

VANCOUVER (CP)—A new gas well being drilled in north-eastern British Columbia may indicate a new gas field in the province, Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan said "yesterday."

Mr. Kiernan told reporters the well may extend the gas-producing fields of B.C. some 100 miles beyond present proven areas.

The well, being drilled by Pan American Petroleum, was brought in last Sunday with an explosion and fire which took the lives of two Alberta workmen.

It is in virgin territory roughly 110 miles northwest of Fort Nelson, B.C., and three miles south of the northern B.C. border.

WORTHWHILE AID

Colombo Plan Fights Reds Says Traveller

Canada should give "freely and generously" to the Colombo Plan in an effort to counteract the influence of dictator countries in Ceylon, India and Pakistan, Rotarian Ernest Heybroek told Victoria Rotary Club Thursday.

Last year, he said, Canada spent $35,000,000 on aid to these countries and this year she will contribute nearer to $50,000,000.

"Is it worth while? I say 'yes.' We are helping these less fortunate peoples to help themselves and in so doing we are making it less likely that they will come under the influence of the dictator countries."

Mr. Heybroek, a Victoria Rotarian living at 242 Beach Drive, was speaking of his recent travels in Ceylon, India and Pakistan where he had an opportunity of studying the Colombo Plan in operation. He also attended the International Rotary Conference at Lucerne and visited friends and relations in his native Holland.

MONEY GOES FARTHER
Mr. Heybroek said Pakistan alone has received $71,000,000 worth of aid from Canada.

"Our money goes a lot farther in these countries than it does here," he added. "For instance, in Pakistan a laborer gets only 35 cents a day and well-made bricks, properly fired, can be bought for 85 cents a thousand."

"In Canada the cost is nearer $80 a thousand. This means that Canadian dollars can make a tremendous contribution to these Colombo Plan countries, enabling them to buy Canadian wheat and flour and many other necessities."

Mr. Heybroek stated that Canada is always ready to send experts to these countries to aid in development, but considerable tact is necessary as some nationalities are "touchy" in this respect.

"We never send our experts unless they are asked for," he said, "and when this happens they are always welcomed."

Surveys made by experts from Canada, and other countries supporting the Colombo Plan, had shown not only the great poverty that exists but the enormous potential wealth awaiting development.

Mr. Heybroek emphasized that the Colombo Plan was not devised as propaganda for the Western way of life but rather to enable "more fortunate countries to help these less fortunate."

At the same time, he believed this assistance had far-reaching effects in the way of international goodwill.

"These countries are subjected to a great deal of undesirable propaganda and we can help to counteract this through the Colombo Plan."

RED CHINA will get United Nations membership "in a very short time," UN General Assembly president Dr. Charles Malik of Lebanon said Thursday. Each year support for U.S. boycott gets slimmer, he said, and soon it will be defeated.

TO BE MADE FREEMAN FEB. 4

Lieutenant-Governor Frank M. Ross will be presented with a scroll proclaiming him a freeman of Victoria at a special city council meeting Feb. 4.

City finance committee took steps to keep the honor exclusive. It recommended that council reject a proposal to call to all ex-mayors of Victoria give freeman status automatically.

NO WAITING, NO MISHAPS

Worry-Free Skippers Dash Through Narrows

By DON INGHAM

When Ripple Rock was blasted April 4 of last year, engineers removed thousands of tons of granite from its twin peaks, and an almost equal weight of worry from the shoulders of shipmasters who must use Seymour Narrows.

Until the memorable blast, Ripple Rock extended to within nine feet of the surface of the narrows, main thoroughfare of the inside passage between Georgia Strait and Alaska. Worse still, it was almost in the centre of the pass.

Powerful ships used to wait for slack water in the narrows, 10 miles north of Campbell River, because of fears that the 14-knot current would set them on the rock, as it had done to many ships before.

Today, however, even large ships race through with the tide, according to Stan J. Fraser, marine superintendent for Victoria Tug Company, and those with sufficient speed go through against the current.

"Ships used to stay well to the east of the rock, going both ways, and that did not leave much room in a channel barely more than one-half mile wide," he said. "Now ships use the whole channel, and are confident that they cannot strike the rock."

5 YEARS OF SURVEYS

The blasting of the rock, climax of about five years of surveys and more than two years of tunnelling from shore up into the rock, gave a depth of 41 feet over the rock at mean low water. This provides a margin of safety for all but the largest ships in the world, which could go through with ease at high tide.

"I've seen as many as a dozen big ships waiting for the slack at one end of the narrows, and counted as many coming through from the other end," Mr. Fraser said.

"Now most of the ships go through as soon as they reach the narrows. They are keeping schedules, and are saving thousands of dollars that used to be wasted in waiting."

Gordon Elworthy of Island Tug & Barge Ltd., said tugboat men still must wait for slack water in the narrows, but appreciate the absence of the hazard.

"The tide still races along at 14 knots at its peak," he said. "With most tugs we have to wait for the slack, but with light barges we sometimes run it sooner than we used to."

"What we appreciate is the removal of the hazard. It's going to save lives."

"There hasn't been a mishap since the twin peaks were blasted."

With Ripple Rock gone, there's elbow room.

Sooke Board to Drop School Bus 'Extras'

LANGFORD — School bus service now provided by Sooke School District outside limits set by the education department will be dropped at the end of the school year, trustees have decided.

The department pays a share of transportation costs for students of grades 1, 2 and 3 beyond two and one-half miles from school, and those of grades 4 and up beyond three miles from school. The district, at the request of ratepayers, is giving additional service at present at its own expense.

Trustee Mrs. Isabelle Reader said after a school board meeting that the board will try to have the department change

Lumber Industry Hit For Losing Markets

(From CP Dispatches)

VANCOUVER — The lumber industry was accused Thursday of complacency. Competitive products were moving in on wood "from every direction."

Carroll O'Rourke, a Portland advertising man, waved a plastic toothpick before the annual convention of the B.C. Truck Loggers Association, and said:

"The toothpick might seem trivial to you, but it is a lost market. This is made of plastic. It used to be made of wood."

Similarly, Mr. O'Rourke said, steel handles are replacing wooden ones on hammers and there are even plastic-based mousetraps.

The industry is interested solely in getting the trees down and not in pushing the products, he said. Architects and builders should be re-educated on the value of wood and its advantages over substitutes.

TRAIL NOMINATION

TRAIL — Roseland Trail Liberal Association has called a nominating convention for Feb. 14 at Warfield. Dr. M. E. Krause, 58-year-old physician who finished third in the Dec. 15 by-election, has said he will seek the nomination. Donald Brothers, Social Credit, won the by-election.

PARK SHEEP STOLEN

VANCOUVER — Three men have been charged with theft of a sheep from the Stanley Park children's zoo here. Demetrius Chessa, Antonio Siara and Antonio Daga were arrested Thursday after police found half a carcass of freshly-killed mutton in a car stopped by an RCMP officer making a routine check.

TRUCK DRIVER KILLED

PENTICTON — John Harold Vader of Penticton, 68-year-old retired railroad engineer, was killed Thursday when his light truck collided with a self-propelled diesel car at a level crossing here. Police said light snow was falling at the time and the road was slippery.

GUILTY OF MURDER

NEW WESTMINSTER — Robert Arthur Chapman, 19, Thursday was found guilty of murder in the shotgun death of his brother, John, 24, Oct. 17, 1958.

An assize court jury made a strong recommendation for leniency in giving the verdict. Mr. Justice Harold MacInnes sentenced the youth to be hanged on March 31.

STRIKE CLOSES MILL

NELSON — The last big lumber mill in operation in this area was closed Thursday in a disagreement over wages between the International Woodworkers of America and the Southern Interior Lumber Manufacturers Association.

A strike closed Passmore Lumber Company at Passmore, in the Skeena Valley, which has an $80,000 monthly payroll.

Murison Blasts Power Blackouts

DUNCAN (CP) — Reeve C. A. P. Murison assailed the B.C. Power Commission Thursday at a meeting of North Cowichan municipal council for "innumerable" power failures during recent months.

"I don't know whether the failures were due to inefficient engineering or to general inefficiency in other departments," Reeve Murison said, "but I do know that the service has never been worse."

"I am not interested in such excuses as a broken transformer or power poles being smashed. I have heard all of these excuses."

"What this council demands is an end to repeated blackouts by immediate and energetic action."

Crofton Councillor Stan Dyke, who told the meeting he had been one of the power commission's first customers in 1937, agreed with Reeve

Big Cougar Visits Town

CROFTON — A cougar as large as an overgrown calf was spotted in downtown Crofton by Mrs. R. Turney, Arthur Street.

Mrs. Turney contacted cougar hunter Frank Holman of Westholme, who was able to pick up the cougar's tracks. With his dog he followed the animal up Richards Mountain where the trail was lost.

Mr. Holman, who found tracks of three cougars on Richards Mountain last summer, said the predator may have been attracted to the area by odors from the garbage dump.

MIKOYAN MEETS DULLES ON GERMANY'S FUTURE

WASHINGTON (AP)—Anastas I. Mikoyan and State Secretary Dulles conferred for more than two hours today on American-Soviet differences—one of them the future of Germany. They arranged for another meeting in the late afternoon.

The deputy premier of the Soviet Union said he and Dulles, confronting each other across a table in Dulles' office, had had "an exchange of views on questions of particular interest to our two countries."

Their discussion could lead to an early, high level East-West meeting on the whole range of German problems.

IMPOSED BY TERROR—BATISTA

'Blood Purge' Storm Mounts

(From Times News Services)

HAVANA, Cuba — Revolutionary leader Fidel Castro today won praise from Russia while a tide of angry condemnation of his "river of blood" purge mounted in North America.

In Havana Castro's government postponed 631 war crimes trials, while other trials in the provinces continued under new rules providing greater rights for the accused.

But more executions were reported today. In Las Villas and Matanzas, bringing the estimated total to date as high as 250.

At the same time a campaign was launched to publicize "the horrors" committed during the reign of ousted president Fulgencio Batista.

He 'Liquidate' Rivals

"You must remember that when he was a student he personally 'liquidated' some of his rivals... that he took part in the Bogota riots (of April, 1948) in which priests and members of religious orders died... and recall his executions in the Maestra mountains."

The Soviet news agency Tass today defended Castro against U.S. criticism of the executions.

"With lying and tendentious reports," said the Tass dispatch from New York, "the American propaganda machine seeks to defame the Cuban people and their new government and to create hatred against them."

not only among the people of the United States but throughout Latin America.

"They are spreading false reports about the manner and extent of the punishment of war criminals and the tyrannical police of the bloody Batista regime—and are trying to represent these people as innocent sacrifices."

Castro himself warned Thursday against any United States intervention.

"If the United States comes here, we will make trenches in the streets," the rebel leader told the Havana Rotary Club.

But the state department said in Washington that American policy was "strictly

Douk Propaganda Draws RCMP Blast

OTTAWA (CP)—The propaganda of the proposed Doukhobor migration back to Russia has been "exploited to the full by a small group of leaders," says the annual RCMP report tabled today in the Commons.

"The project, with its many public meetings, delegations and fund-raising campaigns has caused deep dissensions which have divided families, and in some cases, husband and wife," says the report for the year ended last March 31.

The report also covers numerous acts of terrorism in the B.C. interior, long troubled by bombings and other attacks attributed to the radical Doukhobor sect.

It says that "almost without exception" Sons of Freedom children have been happy and "well cared for" in the special government school for them at New Denver, B.C.

Tory Warns Of Livestock Monopoly

OTTAWA (CP) — Warner Jorgenson, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for the Manitoba farming constituency of Provencher, today warned that pack-houses and feed companies may gain a monopoly of livestock production.

During his Commons speech moving the address in reply to the throne speech, he referred to a trend toward "vertical integration" whereby a farmer's capital costs to produce a certain type of livestock under contract are borne by a meat-packing firm or a feed company.

The result, he said, is that the farmer in effect becomes the company's employee.

"The products that come under this type of farming today have been hogs, turkey and chicken broilers."

"Farmers are concerned over this move toward integration. The dangers of a food monopoly are not readily apparent and I need not enlarge upon them here. In addition, and perhaps equally as important, would be the loss of independence that is characteristic of farming today. It would... set agriculture back 1,000 years."

State Lotteries Asked by MPs

OTTAWA (CP)—Two Progressive Conservatives and a Liberal today proposed steps to legalize lotteries and sweepstakes in Canada.

They generally agreed in their separate proposals that the federal government should consider steps to make state lotteries legal, with profits going to education and housing.

Mervyn Macdonald (Lib.) gave notice of a private member's resolution to consider an amendment to the Criminal Code that would permit state lotteries.

Ferguson Browne (PC-Vancouver-Kingsway) simply called on the government to take the steps necessary for a national hospital sweepstakes operated by a federal agency.

NATIONAL FLAG ISSUE GOING TO COMMONS

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons today received notices of proposals by two members who want to give Canada a distinctive national flag.

Samuel Boulanger (Lib., Drummond-Athabaska) gave notice of a bill "respecting flags of Canada." Details will be made known when his bill is introduced in the Commons.

Maurice Allard (PC, Sherbrooke) seeks appointment of a parliamentary committee to study the adoption of a distinctive national flag and national anthem for Canada.

'IRREPARABLE LOSS TO US ALL'

Cathedral Filled For Sloan Rites

Hundreds of men and women of different faiths and political creeds gathered in Christ Church Cathedral this afternoon to pay their last respects to the late Gordon Sloan, former chief justice and B.C. forestry adviser.

They included people of every rank from Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross to city workmen who knew Mr. Sloan only as a passing figure who treated everyone with equal courtesy.

They heard Archbishop Harold Sexton speak of him as "an influence that was quiet, dignified and great," an example of "good citizenship and never-failing courtesy."

Premier Bennett and members of the cabinet attended with Mayor Percy Scurrah and aldermen of the city council.

Donald Gordon, chairman and president of Canadian National Railways, was represented by J. J. Behan, manager and general superintendent, CNR, B.C. district.

The arrival of the funeral cortege, the pallbearers and the crowds outside were televised by the CBC and TV cameramen were also permitted to televise parts of the service, which was conducted with a solemnity and dignity befitting the occasion.

'Man Has Gone, Example Remains'

The archbishop in his eulogy of Mr. Sloan said:

"It has been deemed fitting that a further brief tribute should be paid to the memory of him to whom we bid a most respectful farewell today."

"If there were one person whom we would regard as indispensable in the life of our community and province, it would surely be Gordon Sloan, whose funeral is dignified by a rare outburst of profound respect and genuine regard throughout the whole province."

"An illustrious citizen of the utmost integrity, industry, ability, and discernment, he merited the high offices which he held as well as the complete confidence of the public, and his passing is an irreparable loss to us all."

"He exercised an influence that was quiet, dignified and great, and his example of good citizenship and the never-failing courtesy and modesty which characterized his contacts with others will be long and gratefully remembered."

"We thank the good God for bestowing on us the riches of this man's devotion and service, and with full hearts we say 'God rest his soul.'"

Little Pomp Wide Tour For Queen

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today that a "prominent part" of the Queen's visit to Canada this summer will consist of travels to outlying areas of Canada where she and Prince Philip will see something of Canada's national development.

He informed the Commons the tour will last about six weeks from the arrival June 18 of the Queen at Torbay airport near St. John's, Nfld. It would cover 15,000 miles.

Mr. Diefenbaker said a detailed itinerary of the tour will be made public next week.

He said it is hoped that elaborate state functions will be kept to a minimum—a hope echoed by Opposition Leader Pearson and CCF House Leader Hazen Argue.

Mr. Pearson said that hope had been expressed prior to every royal visit in the past. "I hope there will be more success in realizing it than has been made in the past."

The prime minister confirmed previous announcements that the Queen will be present in Ottawa July 1 for observance of Dominion Day, and that the royal yacht Britannia will carry the royal visitors through the Great Lakes.

The Queen is coming primarily to participate in ceremonies marking the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

3-Storey Garage In Future Plans?

By HAL MALONE, Times Business Editor

A 35-year-old Victoria landmark, the Vancouver Island Coach Lines Ltd. bus depot, will be razed early this year to make way for a parking lot for Eaton's.

Vancouver Island Coach Lines will move late in February to the Black Ball ferry building on Wharf Street. The company has been renting the property from Eaton's on a month-to-month basis since its 10-year lease expired last year.

G. Conway Parrott, general manager of the coach lines, confirmed today that his firm is moving its offices from 629 Broughton to the Black Ball building. The move will be completed in the last week of February, Mr. Parrott said.

David Kinnear, general manager of Eaton's in Vancouver, told the Times the historic three-storey bus depot will be razed and the site levelled.

He would not comment on a report the company planned to build a multi-storey, modern parking garage similar to the company's Vancouver structure, but promised an announcement "within a few weeks."

Mr. Kinnear said Eaton's was not interested "at the moment" in locating in the mammoth, proposed Hillside Plaza Shopping Centre "until we see the plans."

Young Swains Hired Horse, Buggy

The shopping centre was announced jointly Wednesday by Mayor Percy Scurrah and land developer Miltor King. Mr. King told reporters that at least two department stores have shown an interest in locating the regional centre in the Hillside-Shelbourne area.

Razing the bus depot will mean the end of one of Victoria's best known and most colorful landmarks.

Hundreds of thousands of Victorians and tourists have walked in and out of the murky, grey building since it opened in the early 20s as a livery stable.

Young swains hired a horse and buggy to take their best girl for a ride, city residents gathered for a quick cup of coffee before catching one of the six city lines and latterly commuters and tourists arrived and left the depot in modern, sleek buses.

The depot was the first home of the Vancouver Province when it was a weekly publication. The paper's offices were later moved to Vancouver.

For 30 years the depot has served as "home" for Vancouver Island Coach Lines.

Mr. Parrott said his company is working out details of a lease with Black Ball. He indicated that the move was for a reasonably long term.

In announcing details of the move, Mr. Parrott said new coach lines offices in the Black Ball ferry building will give Vancouver Island the second bus-hoist service in Canada.

The first bus-hoist service which expired last year. The department store used part of the building for customer parking. They abandoned this early last year and began a limousine service for customers from the Empress Hotel parking lot.

MAGISTRATE THREATENS REPORTER IF STORY PRINTED

One Law for Speeder Gaglardi And Another for Rest of Us?

By PETE LOUDON

Is there one law in British Columbia for cabinet ministers and another for the general public?

This is the question in the mind of a young Victoria driver and his father today.

Last June, Richard E. Midgley, 20, of 2921 Ilene Terrace, was convicted of speeding, was fined $35 and had his licence lifted for two months. It was his first offence.

In December, Highway Minister P. A. Gaglardi was convicted of speeding in Richmond. It was his third speeding offence in 20 months. He was fined $15 and a three-month suspension of his licence was recommended.

Thursday, his licence was returned to him after a suspension of 30 days—balance of the time was cancelled.

Castro seems to be executin' more enemies than policies.

The same magistrate, Magistrate A. I. Thomas of Victoria, presided on each case.

The cabinet minister's appeal was allowed.

The youth, a construction worker, received no reply.

The youth's father, Victor Midgley, said his son went to see the magistrate, "and was almost thrown out of his office."

Why this divergence in the handling of the two cases?

The Times endeavored to find out today in a series of interviews. Richard Midgley was unavailable. But here is the story as told by his father:

"Last June, Richard was convicted of driving at speeds over 50 near Cassidy. It was his first offence. He appeared in RCMP court here and was fined $35 and a two-month suspension was recommended."

"His licence was taken away. After one month, he had opportunity of work with a plumbing contractor. He was just out of school. He needed his car for the job. I wrote to Mr. Lindsay (George Lindsay, superintendent, motor vehicle branch) for him and asked the sentence be cut in half, because his job de-

WORLD-ACCLAIMED YOUNG ARTIST ON ASSIGNMENT HERE

Genius Pays Off for 'The Most'

By A. M. THOMAS

Victoria was host Thursday to authentic genius in the person of Roloff Beny, born 34 years ago in Medicine Hat, now a photographer, painter and citizen of the world.

Genius is not a word to be tossed around lightly, but it has been applied to this artist by some of the world's leading authorities. More to the point, its implication stands out boldly, even to the amateur critic, in the few examples of his work he carries with him.

Lives in Rome

Now living in Rome, Mr. Beny came to Victoria in the execution of a commission from the English slick magazine "Queen" to picture the Pacific coast, a folio that will be one of a series he is doing, "The Most," portraying people "fixed or in flight."

Others in the series have been taken in Rome, Venice, London, New York and Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal, the latter three as one unit. The Victoria Art Gallery was another attraction, since the visitor, on another commission, is compiling a review of the art museums and their curators on this coast.

A painter since he was 15, the young-looking Canadian became a photographer almost by accident, with the purchase of a second-hand camera in Spain a few years ago. With it he took photographs in lieu of sketches and subsequently showed them to an English publisher when he returned to Rome.

The outcome, after more pictures and much negotiation, was a monumental publication, "The Thrones of Earth and Heaven."

In essence, the book is a picture of all the Levantine countries, from Spain to Syria, their ruins and works of art. The London Times hailed it "...as refreshing as a journey through time."

A French edition was brought out and then a German, the latter running to two editions comprising 35,000 copies.

Text for the book was supplied by such notables as Jean Cocteau, Bernard Berenson, Rose Macaulay, Freya Stark, Stephen Spender and four directors of the Louvre.

$20 a Copy

The Canadian edition was published recently by Longman, Green and will be available in Victoria soon—at $20 a copy.

Tall, dark and with all the traditional characteristics of an artist, Mr. Beny is a dedicated man of decided opinions and convictions which he states with emphasis, if necessary.

He was innocently asked: "Do you now consider yourself a photographer first or a painter?"

"How can you tell from one day to the next," he replied with some asperity.

"Why should a man define himself as this or that so long as he is open to impressions and learning."

"For the artist the search has to come before the goal and each goal is the beginning of another search."

Leaving here Thursday

night for Los Angeles, Mr. Beny will be the guest of Sir Lawrence Olivier in Hollywood, resume his "Most" series and then come back up the coast.

Book on Canada

His next big undertaking will be a book on Canada similar to that on the Mediterranean, one which may take years to complete.

Commissioned by his English publishers, the work will employ his dual talents as painter and photographer and will, he hopes, cover completely such (since Emily Carr) virgin ground as the Queen Charlottes and the west coast of this island.

To come to earth with a crash, it may be said that genius pays.

Schooled in Lethbridge (where his parents now live), at Trinity College, Toronto, and Columbia University, he won a Guggenheim scholarship, one of a very few Canadian artists so honored, and went to Rome to live 11 years ago.

He now lives in the top floor of an ancient palazzo overlooking the Tiber where he maintains 11 rooms, two studios, one for visiting artists who are also accommodated in five of the rooms.

Rooms for Artists

He also keeps, on a year-round basis, pied-a-terre in New York (an apartment), and Waterton Lakes, Alberta (a log-cabin complete with Siberian husky dog).

"Who occupies these places when you are absent?"

"Oh, friends, visiting artists," he says airily; "they're always open."

You'd recognize Beny as an artist just to look at him.

When your reporter saw him he saw for the first time in his life a man wearing a tie to match his suit, a small black and brown-check, of conservative cut.

"But you'll notice," said the visitor, "that the pattern on the tie is just a shade smaller than that on the suit."

Crowd of 750 At Optimist Bingo Night

A crowd of 750 attended another of a series of bingo games Thursday night in Central Junior High School under sponsorship of Victoria Optimist Club.

The $200 first prize was shared by co-winners Mrs. J. Evans, 1676 Derby Road, and Mrs. A. Patterson, 2730 Blackwood. Winner of the $50 prize was Mrs. B. Horsman, 1283 Centre Road.

There was no winner of the $250 jackpot for $300, since no player filled a card in the stipulated number of calls. The jackpot will be increased to $400 with 54 calls at the next session Feb. 5.

Miss Aletha Steick played organ selections during the evening, and members of the Solarium Junior League served refreshments.

OTHER WINNERS

Winners of minor prizes were Mrs. F. Perrott, 2134 Claude; H. Holt, 1410 Fort; Mrs. R. Beck, Lincoln Hotel; Mrs. A. McGillivray, 2421 Trent; Mrs. W. Cambrey, 3501 Saanich; Mrs. J. H. The power pole caught fire. B.C. Electric crewmen extinguished the blaze and installed a new insulator.

Jardar Lauvaas, 2133 Spring, altered his plea to guilty in mid-trial Thursday and was fined $250 for impaired driving Dec. 14.

The accused had pleaded not guilty to the charge read in Saanich police court, but after evidence was given for the Crown by a doctor and one constable, defence counsel James Proudfoot entered the new plea.

Police said Lauvaas drove in an erratic manner on Douglas before being stopped by a patrol car.

Four-Year Plan Put to Saanich

$950,000 Financing Proposed

Saanich council is considering a $950,000 four-year financing plan to provide essential administrative facilities for the expanding municipality.

The plan, prepared by comptroller-treasurer John Tribe, calls for expenditures of $150,000 for development of a new municipal yard, $150,000 for new fire hall and police station, and $650,000 for new municipal hall.

Mr. Tribe said the financing plan would work no hardship upon ratepayers if steps were taken now to finance the required administrative facilities.

'ECONOMICAL BASIS'

"It would be wise for council to look ahead and to plan their requirements so that they can arrange financing," he said. "They can be carried out on an economical basis."

He said the projects would not affect the borrowing power of the municipality.

Mr. Tribe proposed that the projects be financed as follows:

1. Appropriation of $230,000 from tax sale lands fund which would be used to assist in financing all three projects;
2. A $100,000 short-term loan (repayable in four years) for the new municipal yard;
3. Provision in the budget of $50,000 a year for four years for construction of a new municipal hall;
4. Appropriation of $100,000 from surplus funds;
5. A $320,000 money bylaw to be submitted to ratepayers in December, 1961, for the new municipal hall.

NEED REPAIRS

Mr. Tribe noted that the Douglas Street No. 1 fire hall and municipal yard were old and need extensive repairs if not replaced.

Mr. Tribe considered a new municipal yard "imperative in the interest of efficient administration."

"Construction of a new hall should start in four years," he said. "By that time the present quarters at Royal Oak will be severely overcrowded."

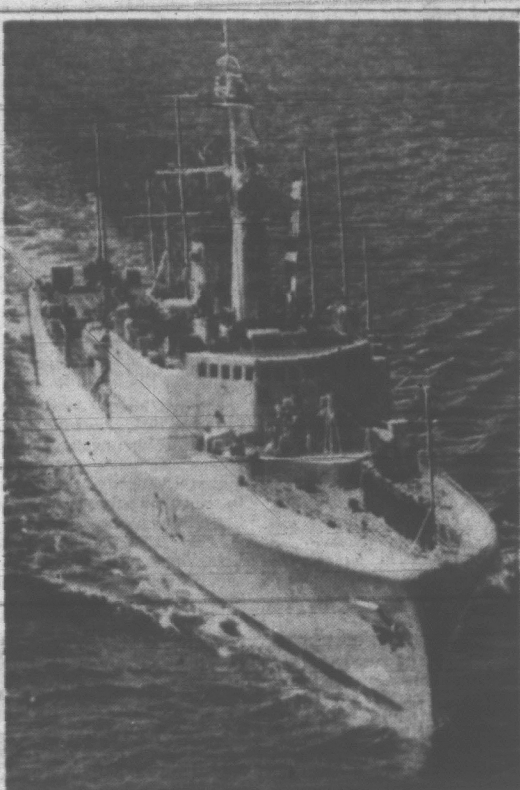

152% BOOST

He noted that the population of Saanich has increased from 16,811 in 1941 to 42,300 in 1958, or 152 per cent.

The capital region planning board estimates that it will reach 59,000 in 1968 and 75,000 in 1976," he added.

Reeve George Chatterton said he was impressed by the report because it would not affect to any extent the borrowing powers of the municipality.

"Most of the funds would be raised by savings and using surplus and land sale funds," he added.

'Big Switch' Plan Nears Final Phase

Final phase in the RCN's "Operation Transfer" involving seven destroyers will start Monday at Esquimalt and Halifax.

The improved Tribal class destroyers Athabaskan and Cayuga will leave at 9 a.m. for Halifax, where they will join the Atlantic Command.

On the same day, the St. Laurent class destroyers Assiniboine and Ottawa will leave Halifax to join the Pacific Command.

The former west coast ship Crescent is already at sea, and will meet Assiniboine in San Diego, where the ships' companies will change ships between Feb. 13 and 20.

HERE MARCH 30

Crescent will proceed to Halifax and Assiniboine to Esquimalt, the latter ship arriving here March 20. Ottawa will arrive at this port March 18.

Athabaskan and Cayuga will reach Halifax Feb. 16, and the crew of Athabaskan will take over Saguenay and the crew of Cayuga will move to St. Laurent.

Saguenay and St. Laurent are due to arrive at Esquimalt April 6.

"Operation Transfer" is being carried out to make the Second Canadian Escort Squadron based here a "one class" fleet, and to increase it from six to seven ships.

Assiniboine, commanded by Capt. J. C. Pratt, senior officer of the squadron, will be leader to HMC Ships Marg-aree, Skeena and Fraser (based here since commissioning) plus the former Atlantic Command ships St. Laurent, Ottawa and Saguenay.

When she leaves Halifax, Assiniboine will be flying the traditional "paying off pennant" because her crew will be leaving her at San Diego.

She will fly about 375 feet of narrow hunting, based on length of the ship plus an additional foot added for each month of service over two years.

NAVAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

New Glasgow returns Jan. 30, Sussexvale, Stettler, Antigonish, Beacon Hill, Jonquiere return Feb. 6.

Fraser, Margaree and Skeena return March 20. Crescent goes to Atlantic command.

New Waterford returns 4 p.m. Jan. 23.

Car Crash Victim 'Extremely Poor'

Edward D. Miles, 35, of 3366 Wordsworth, was fighting for his life in Royal Jubilee Hospital today following injuries suffered in a two-car collision Tuesday.

He failed to rally following a four-hour brain operation Thursday.

Hospital authorities said his condition was "extremely poor."

University School Music Master To Succeed Steed at Cathedral

Richard Proudman, 28, music master at the University School, Victoria, has been appointed organist and choir-master at Christ Church Cathedral, Dean Brian Whitlow announced today.

He succeeds Graham Steed, who resigned from the post last year after nine years at the cathedral.

AT ST. MARY'S

A distinguished church musician, Mr. Proudman came to Victoria three years ago and, besides teaching at University School, has been organist and choir-master at St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay.

He lives with his wife and three children at 1602 Richmond.

Dean Whitlow said applications for the cathedral post were received from "leading organists and choir directors in many parts of the world, from a total of five different countries."

"Just before Christmas, the short list had been reduced to seven," he said. "Since then, we have conducted many personal interviews in Victoria and elsewhere to make sure of selecting the right man."

The Dean said Mr. Proudman

has already made a considerable reputation for himself as a church musician and in the musical life of the city as a whole.

"We are looking forward with much pleasure to welcoming him to the cathedral staff. His conception of the function of music in the worship of God is thoroughly sound, being both imaginative and constructive."

"He will have a great contribution to make at the cathedral."

NOT SOUGHT

The Dean emphasized that, as Mr. Proudman is transferring from another church in Victoria, he wished to make it clear that his application was not sought by the cathedral.

"When Mr. Proudman applied his qualifications were considered simply on their merits in open competition with all others."

Archbishop Harold Sexton said he was very pleased at the appointment.

"Mr. Proudman is young but he shows every sign of being able to rise to the responsibility which is being given him."

DEGREES

The new cathedral organist holds the following degrees and qualifications: BA (Cambridge), BSc (Cambridge), MA (Cambridge), MSc (Cambridge), Music BSc (Cambridge), in Musicology and Organ Performance, ARCM (piano), ARCM (organ performance) and ARCM (organ performance).

While at King's College, Cambridge, he studied under the famous Dr. Boris Ord and later C. H. Trevor, organist of Lincoln's Inn and professor of organ at the Royal Academy of Music in London.

Mr. Proudman's previous appointments include those of assistant organist at Rugby School, England, and lecturer in music and choir director at the Royal Normal College for the Blind.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. How many Section 80 ballots were cast by persons not on the voters' list in the Dec. 15 Trial by election and why were they not opened or counted? W.M.G.

A. Ballots cast under Section 80 of the Elections Act are limited to persons who swear an affidavit that they were left in error from the voters' list. In this circumstance, the returning officer accepts a ballot sealed in an envelope. The affidavit is printed on the face of the envelope. Following the election, the names on the affidavits are checked against the master file of registered voters. If the name appears on that file, the ballot is counted. If not, the envelope is opened and destroyed after the trial by election.

In the Richmond-Traffalgar election, 80 Section 80 votes, but only 67 of these were found to be valid.

Persons wishing a further answer are invited to send the question about to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to answer confidential or legal questions. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to dealers.

NO WAITING, NO MISHAPS

By DON INGHAM
When Ripple Rock was blasted April 4 of last year, engineers removed thousands of tons of granite from its twin peaks, and an almost equal weight of worry from the shoulders of shipmasters who must use Seymour Narrows.

Until the memorable blast, Ripple Rock extended to within nine feet of the surface of the narrows, main thoroughfare of the inside passage between Georgia Strait and Alaska. Worse still, it was almost in the centre of the pass.

Powerful ships used to wait for slack water in the narrows, 10 miles north of Campbell River, because of fears that the 14-knot current would set them on the rock, as it had done to many ships before.

Today, however, even large ships race through with the tide, according to Stan J. Fraser, marine superintendent for Victoria Tug Company, and those with sufficient speed go through against the current.

"Ships used to stay well to the east of the rock, going both ways, and that did not leave much room in a channel barely more than one-half mile wide," he said. "Now ships use the whole channel, and are confident that they cannot strike the rock."

5 YEARS OF SURVEYS
The blasting of the rock climaxed about five years of surveys and more than two years of tunnelling from shore up into the rock, gave a depth of 41 feet over the rock at mean low water. This provides a margin of safety for all but the largest ships in the world, which could go through with ease at high tide.

"It's seen as many as a dozen big ships waiting for the slack at one end of the narrows, and counted as many coming through from the other end," Mr. Fraser said.

"Now most of the ships go through as soon as they reach the narrows. They are keeping schedules, and are saving thousands of dollars that used to be wasted in waiting."

Gordon Elworthy of Island Tug & Barge Ltd., said tugboat men still must wait for slack water in the narrows, but appreciate the absence of the hazard.

"The tide still races along at 14 knots at its peak," he said. "With most tugs we have to wait for the slack, but with light barges we sometimes run it sooner than we used to."

"What we appreciate is the removal of the hazard. It's going to save lives."

There hasn't been a mishap since the twin peaks were blasted.

With Ripple Rock gone, there's elbow room.

Sooke Board to Drop School Bus 'Extras'

LANGFORD — School bus service now provided by Sooke School District outside limits set by the education department will be dropped at the end of the school year, trustees have decided.

The department pays a share of transportation costs for students of grades 1, 2 and 3 beyond two and one-half miles from school, and those of grades 4 and up beyond three miles from school. The district, at the request of ratepayers, is giving additional service at present at its own expense.

Trustee Mrs. Isabelle Reader said after a school board meeting that the board will try to have the department change its ruling. The board will pay half the added cost if the department will pay the other half, she said.

Sum of $60,000 is available for construction of a new elementary school at Milnes Landing. Also to be built this year is an activity room at Sooke School.

These projects are in addition to the Belmont junior high and Millstream elementary school authorized by ratepayers' vote on a money bylaw last fall.

Lumber Industry Hit For Losing Markets

(From CP Dispatches)
VANCOUVER—The lumber industry was accused Thursday of complacency. Competitive products were moving in on wood "from every direction."

Carroll O'Rourke, a Portland advertising man, waved a plastic toothpick before the annual convention of the B.C. Truck Loggers Association, and said:

"The toothpick might seem trivial to you, but it is a lost market. This is made of plastic, it used to be made of wood."

Similarly, Mr. O'Rourke said, steel handles are replacing wooden ones on hammers and there are even plastic-based mousetraps.

The industry is interested solely in getting the trees down and not in pushing the products, he said. Architects and builders should be re-educated on the value of wood and its advantages over substitutes.

TRAIL NOMINATION
TRAIL—Rossland-Trail Liberal Association has called a nominating convention for Feb. 14 at Wartfield. Dr. M. E. Krause, 58-year-old physician who finished third in the Dec. 15 by-election, has said he will seek the nomination. Donald Brothers, Social Credit, won the by-election.

NEW WESTMINSTER—Robert Arthur Chapman, 19, Thursday was found guilty of murder in the shotgun death of his brother, John, 24, Oct. 17, 1958.

Mr. Justice Harold MacInnes sentenced the youth to be hanged on March 31.

STRIKE CLOSES MILL
NELSON—The last big lumber mill in operation in this area was closed Thursday in a disagreement over wages between the International Woodworkers of America and the Southern Interior Lumber Manufacturers Association.

A strike closed Passmore Lumber Company's Parkmore mill in the Slocan Valley, which has an $80,000 monthly payroll.

Murison Blasts Power Blackouts

DUNCAN (CP)—Reeve C. A. P. Murison assailed the B.C. Power Commission Thursday at a meeting of North Cowichan municipal council for "innumerable" power failures during recent months.

"I don't know whether the failures were due to inefficient engineering or to general inefficiency in other departments," Reeve Murison said, "but I do know that the service has never been worse."

"I am not interested in such excuses as a broken transformer or power poles being smashed. I have heard all of these excuses."

"What this council demands is an end to repeated blackouts by immediate and energetic action."

Crofton Councillor Stan Dyke, who told the meeting he had been one of the power commission's first customers in 1937, agreed with Reeve

Big Cougar Visits Town

CROFTON — A cougar as large as an overgrown cat was spotted in downtown Crofton by Mrs. R. Turney, Arthur Street.

Mrs. Turney contacted cougar hunter Frank Holman of Westholme, who was able to pick up the cougar's tracks. With his dog he followed the animal up Richards Mountain where the trail was lost.

Mr. Holman, who found tracks of three cougars on Richards Mountain last summer, said the predator may have been attracted to the area by odors from the garbage dump.

Special Treatment for Gagliardi?

By PETE LOUDON
Is there one law in British Columbia for cabinet ministers and another for the general public?

This is the question in the mind of a young Victoria driver and his father today.

Last June, Richard E. Midgley, 20, of 2921 Ilene Terrace, was convicted of speeding, was fined $35 and had his licence lifted for two months. It was his first offence.

In December, Highway Minister P. A. Gagliardi was convicted of speeding in Richmond. It was his third speeding offence in 20 months. He was fined $15 and a three-month suspension of his licence was recommended.

Thursday, his licence was returned to him after a suspension of 30 days—balance of the time was cancelled.

The same magistrate, Magistrate A. I. Thomas of Victoria, presided on each case. The same magistrate received letters of appeal from each speeder.

The cabinet minister's appeal was allowed.

The youth, a construction worker, received no reply.

The youth's father, Victor Midgley, said his son went to see the magistrate, "and was almost thrown out of his office."

Why this divergence in the handling of the two cases?

The Times endeavored to find out today in a series of interviews. Richard Midgley was unavailable. But here is the story as told by his father:

"Last June, Richard was convicted of driving at speeds over 50 near Cassidy. It was his first offence. He appeared in RCMP court here and was fined $35 and a two-month suspension was recommended."

"His licence was taken away. After one month, he had opportunity of work with a plumbing contractor. (He was just out of school). He needed his car for the job. I wrote to Mr. Lindsay (George Lindsay, superintendent, motor vehicle branch) for him and asked the sentence be cut in half, because his job depended on him being able to drive for business purposes. There was no reply."

"Someone in Mr. Lindsay's office phoned and said the department could not write an answer as it was 'against our regulations... we can't interfere when a magistrate makes a recommendation... but I would suggest you write the same letter to Magistrate Thomas."

"Magistrate Thomas didn't answer the letter, and my boy went to talk to him. He was just about thrown out of his office. The magistrate said: 'Oh you were the guy who wrote me. I wouldn't reduce your suspension by one day... it is a sin to write me, a magistrate, a letter'."

Motor vehicle branch superintendent George Lindsay cleared his office of any responsibility in the matter today.

He said although his branch is the authority which "picks up" the licence in a suspension, such action is done on recommendation of a magistrate in cases of this nature.

It is procedure to follow a magistrate's recommendation, and in case of appeal, the appeal is forwarded to the magistrate, who makes the final ruling.

In the case of Mr. Midgley, he was advised to see the magistrate. This was also the case with respect to the minister. In each case, Magistrate Thomas' recommendations were followed.

Mr. Lindsay examined the file of Mr. Midgley today. There were no unusual circumstances to merit a more severe penalty—except, that at

'IRREPARABLE LOSS TO US ALL'

Hundreds Mourn At Sloan Rites

Hundreds of men and women of different faiths and political creeds gathered in Christ Church Cathedral this afternoon to pay their last respects to the late Gordon Sloan, former chief justice and B.C. forestry adviser.

They included people of every rank from Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross to city workmen who knew Mr. Sloan only as a passing figure who treated everyone with equal courtesy.

They heard Archbishop Harold Sexton speak of him as "an influence that was quiet, dignified and great"... an example of "good citizenship and never-failing courtesy."

Under great overcast skies, friends and admirers of Mr. Sloan from many parts of the province filed slowly into the shadowy cathedral and took their seats with grave faces as the first tremulous notes of the organ announced the start of the service.

Premier Bennett and members of the cabinet attended with Mayor Percy Scourrah and aldermen of the city council.

Donald Gordon, chairman and president of Canadian National Railways, was represented by J. J. Behan, manager and general superintendent, CNR, B.C. district.

The arrival of the funeral cortege, the pallbearers and the crowds outside were televised by the CBC and TV cameramen were also permitted to televise parts of the service, which was conducted with a solemnity and dignity befitting the occasion.

'Mañ Has Gone, Example Remains'

The archbishop in his eulogy of Mr. Sloan said:

"It has been deemed fitting that a further brief tribute should be paid to the memory of him to whom we bid a most respectful farewell today."

"If there were one person whom we would regard as indispensable in the life of our community and province, it would surely be Gordon Sloan, whose funeral is signalized by a rare outburst of profound respect and genuine regard throughout the whole province."

"An illustrious citizen of the utmost integrity, industry, ability, and discernment, he merited the high offices which he held as well as the complete confidence of the public, and his passing is an irreparable loss to us all."

"He exercised an influence that was quiet, dignified and great, and his example of good citizenship and the never-failing courtesy and modesty which characterized his contacts with others will be long and gratefully remembered."

"The man has gone but his example remains. At this time and in this sacred place let us realize that, although he has passed from our earthly sight, he has not gone from our living fellowship."

"We thank the good God for bestowing on us the riches of this man's devotion and service, and with full hearts we say 'God rest his soul.'"

ANGRY GESTURE of Fidel Castro condemns U.S. criticism of Cuba's massive purge of ex-president Batista's adherents.

(From Times News Services)

HAVANA, Cuba — Revolutionary leader Fidel Castro today won praise from Russia while a tide of angry condemnation of his "river of blood" purge mounted in North America.

In Havana Castro's government postponed 631 war crimes trials, while other trials in the provinces continued under new rules providing greater rights for the accused.

But more executions were reported today. In Las Villas and Matanzas, bringing the estimated total to date as high as 250.

At the same time a campaign was launched to publicize "the horrors" committed during the reign of ousted president Fulgencio Batista.

Batista himself said in his Dominican exile that Castro would have to kill, jail or banish more than half Cuba's 6,000,000 population to punish all Batista's followers.

He called the execution "a state of collective insanity imposed by terror."

"The river of blood now running in my unfortunate country is caused by a thirst for vengeance and savagery whose origin must be sought in Castro himself."

He 'Liquidated' Rivals

"You must remember that when he was a student he personally 'liquidated' some of his rivals... that he took part in the Bogota riots of April 1948) in which priests and members of religious orders died... and recall his executions in the Maestra mountains."

not only among the people of the United States but throughout Latin America.

"They are spreading false reports about the manner and extent of the punishment of war criminals and the tyrannical police of the bloody Batista regime and are trying to represent these people as innocent sacrifices."

Castro himself warned Thursday against any United States intervention.

"If the United States comes here, we will make trenches in the streets," the rebel leader told the Havana Rotary Club.

But the state department said in Washington that American policy was "strictly

Eaton's Announce Development At Coach Lines

By HAL MALONE, Times Business Editor

A 35-year-old Victoria landmark, the Vancouver Island Coach Lines Ltd. bus depot, will be razed early this year to make way for a parking lot for Eaton's.

Vancouver Island Coach Lines will move late in February to the Black Ball ferry building on Wharf Street. The company has been renting the property from Eaton's on a month-to-month basis since its 10-year lease expired last year.

G. Conway Parrott, general manager of the coach lines, confirmed today that his firm is moving its offices from 629 Broughton to the Black Ball building. The move will be completed in the last week of February, Mr. Parrott said.

David Kinnear, general manager of Eaton's in Vancouver, told the Times the historic three-story bus depot will be razed and the site levelled.

He would not comment on a report the company planned to build a multi-story, modern parking garage similar to the company's Vancouver structure, but promised an announcement "within a few weeks."

Mr. Kinnear said Eaton's was not interested "at the moment" in locating in the mammoth, proposed Hillside Plaza Shopping Centre "until we see the plans."

Young Swains Hired Horse, Buggy

The shopping centre was announced jointly Wednesday by Mayor Percy Scourrah and land developer Milton King. Mr. King told reporters that at least two department stores have shown an interest in locating the regional centre in the Hillside-Shelbourne area.

Razing the bus depot will mean the end of one of Victoria's best known and most colorful landmarks.

Hundreds of thousands of Victorians and tourists have walked in and out of the murky, grey building since it opened in the early 20s as a livery stable.

Young swains hired a horse and buggy to take their best girl for a ride, city residents gathered for a quick cup of coffee before catching one of the six city lines and latterly commuters and tourists arrived and left the depot in modern, sleek buses.

The depot was the first home of the Vancouver Province when it was a weekly publication. The paper's offices were later moved to Vancouver.

For 30 years the depot has served as "home" for Vancouver Island Coach Lines.

Mr. Parrott said his company is working out details of a lease with Black Ball. He indicated that the move was for a reasonably long term.

'Stop It Castro' Campaign in B.C.

the time of the offence, the accused was 19 years, a minor.

MORE SERIOUS

"The courts always take a more serious view when a minor is involved," said Mr. Lindsay.

When Magistrate Thomas was asked for comment on the Midgley sentence, he said:

"I disagree deeply on this... he (Midgley) just disagrees because he is in the labor movement... his court appearance left much to be desired.

The magistrate was asked why he forwarded a copy of Mr. Gaglardi's written appeal against the sentence to Mr. Lindsay and not the letter written by Mr. Midgley?

"It was sent, Lindsay had the right to do as he pleased on the matter."

"Young Midgley was out of place in showing you this tripe. If anything comes out in the press regarding this affair... the press will be out as far as I am concerned."

Magistrate Thomas was asked to explain why he recommended a lessening of the time of Mr. Gaglardi's suspension.

"I received a letter from Mr. Gaglardi and turned it over to Mr. Lindsay. What he does to it is up to the department."

The magistrate read a copy of his letter to Mr. Lindsay which had an enclosure written by Mr. Gaglardi in reference to his appeal against a three-month suspension. The letter was dated Jan. 14.

A quote from the letter by the magistrate:

"The minister has no one to blame but himself in this matter. He showed a lack of courtesy to the court in not attending in person when he would have been given the right to speak."

"Had Mr. Gaglardi appeared in court and had explained the circumstances in the enclosed letter, there is no doubt the court would have given consideration to the merits of his appeal."

"In conclusion, I want to point out that Mr. Gaglardi was accorded the same privileges and penalty as was given to any similar offender, regardless of race, color, or creed." It was signed by the magistrate.

CITY

began in 1948 when the Coach Lines began operating from bus bays linked with the Canadian Pacific Steamships' wharf at Nanaimo.

Today, Vancouver Island Coach Lines operates runs to West Saanich, Sidney, Cordova Bay, Nanaimo, and Up-Island points.

In the mid-1940s, the company operated six city transit lines, representing one-third of the city's transit system. These lines were taken over by the B.C. Electric in 1950.

Mr. Parrott said the Coach Lines will be able to load as many as four buses, needed in the Black Ball offices. Traffic surveys indicate the company won't create a traffic problem, even when Washington State Ferries operate their Victoria-Port Angeles service in June to September.

Washington State Ferries will operate the ferries from the Black Ball Building. The Coach Lines will operate the west side, executive, ticketed and express services, and the east side on the main floor.

V.I. Coach Lines now has about 100 employees. Buses not in operation will remain at the company's mechanical depot, located behind the Empress Hotel laundry plant.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver paper, backed by leading British Columbia citizens, has appealed to British Columbians to join in asking Cuban rebel leader Fidel Castro to stop the executions in his country.

The newspaper quoted support for the appeal from Dr. N. A. M. MacKenzie, president of the University of B.C.; Mrs. Theresa Galloway, president of the Vancouver Council of Women; Attorney-General Robert Bonner of B.C., and Bill Black, president of the B.C. Federation of Labor.

The paper said it hopes the appeal will bring to the revolutionary government of Cuba the "knowledge that the blood bath is alienating free people."

"A BLACK EYE"

Dr. MacKenzie termed the executions "ghastly" and a "stinking business" which will give Castro a "very bad black eye."

Mrs. Galloway added: "I don't know that anything we can do will help, but the whole world should rise up and protest the actions of the Cuban rebels."

Said Attorney-General Bonner: "The Castro regime is doing itself a disservice by permitting this spectacle to continue, and certainly people are justified in calling upon him to immediately restore the rule of law."

Tory Warns Of Livestock Monopoly

OTTAWA (CP) — Warner Jorgenson, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for the Manitoba farming constituency of Provencher, today warned that pack-houses and feed companies may gain a monopoly of livestock production.

During his Commons speech moving the address in reply to the throne speech, he referred to a trend toward "vertical integration" whereby a farmer's capital costs to produce certain types of livestock under contract are borne by a meat-packing firm or a feed company.

The result, he said, is that the farmer in effect becomes the company's employee.

"The products that come under this type of farming today have been hogs, turkey and chicken broilers."

"Farmers are concerned over this move toward integration. The dangers of a food monopoly are not readily apparent and I need not enlarge upon them here. In addition, and perhaps equally as important, would be the loss of independence that is characteristic of farming today. It would... set agriculture back 1,000 years."

CUBA

one of non-intervention in Cuban domestic affairs."

Noting U.S. congressional protests to the executions, Assistant State Secretary Roy Rubottom said, "We are not going to intervene in what is essentially Cuba's affairs."

To avoid misunderstanding, the U.S. Navy cancelled previous plans for 3,000 U.S. Marines en route to maneuvers near Puerto Rico to stop at the American navy base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. The base is at the opposite end of the island from Havana.

Castro earlier Thursday, in remarks to a group in his hotel lobby, had said that if U.S. Marines are sent to Cuba 200,000 gringos "will die." Gringo is the derogatory Latin American term for U.S. citizens, of whom there are 12,000 living in Cuba.

Castro later told the Rotary club he had not realized this comment would be published but he stood by it.

CRITICS IN U.S.

The rebel chief's vision of U.S. troops landing in Cuba apparently followed demands by critics in the U.S. Congress that the United States do something to stop the Cuban firing squads. One of the loudest of these critics, Democratic representative Wayne Hays of Ohio, said Thursday he meant economic retaliation, not the sending of troops.

President Manuel Urrutia said in a television interview today that the revolutionary government had been ordered to turn over to the government documents and dossiers enumerating the crimes of Batista supporters.

He said the evidence would be made public to correct for the "distorted picture" of the United States, in what is going on in Cuba.

Urrutia said relations with Cuba "insists on maintaining its own point of view."

NO WAITING, NO MISHAPS

By DON INGHAM

When Ripple Rock was blasted April 4 of last year, engineers removed thousands of tons of granite from its twin peaks, and an almost equal weight of worry from the shoulders of shipmasters who must use Seymour Narrows.

Until the memorable blast, Ripple Rock extended to within nine feet of the surface of the narrows, main thoroughfare of the inside passage between Georgia Strait and Alaska. Worse still, it was almost in the centre of the pass.

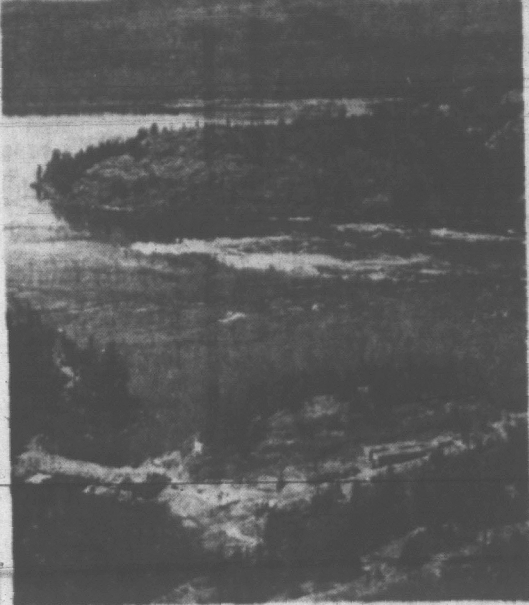

Powerful ships used to wait for slack water in the narrows, 10 miles north of Campbell River, because of fears that the 14-knot current would set them on the rock, as it had done to many ships before.

Today, however, even large ships race through with the tide, according to Stan J. Fraser, marine superintendent for Victoria-Tug Company, and those with sufficient speed go through against the current.

"Ships used to stay well to the east of the rock, going both ways, and that did not leave much room in a channel barely more than one-half mile wide," he said. "Now ships use the whole channel, and are confident that they cannot strike the rock."

SIX YEARS OF SURVEYS
The blasting of the rock, climax of about five years of surveys and more than two years of tunnelling from shore up into the rock, gave a depth of 41 feet over the rock at mean low water. This provides a margin of safety for all but the largest ships in the world, which could go through with ease at high tide.

"I've seen as many as a dozen big ships waiting for the slack at one end of the narrows, and counted as many coming through from the other end," Mr. Fraser said.

"Now most of the ships go through as soon as they reach the narrows. They are keeping schedules, and are saving thousands of dollars that used to be wasted in waiting."

Gordon Elworthy of Island Tug & Barge Ltd., said tugboat men still must wait for slack water in the narrows, but appreciate the absence of the hazard.

"The tide still races along at 14 knots at its peak," he said. "With most tugs we have to wait for the slack, but with light barges we sometimes run it sooner than we used to."

"What we appreciate is the removal of the hazard. It's going to save lives."

There hasn't been a mishap since the twin peaks were blasted.

Murison Blasts Power Blackouts

DUNCAN (C.B.)—Reeve C. A. P. Murison assailed the B.C. Power Commission Thursday at a meeting of North Cowichan municipal council for "innumerable" power failures during recent months.

"I don't know whether the failures were due to inefficient engineering or to general inefficiency in other departments," Reeve Murison said, "but I do know that the service has never been worse."

"I am not interested in such excuses as a broken transformer or power poles being smashed. I have heard all of these excuses."

"What this council demands is an end to repeated blackouts by immediate and energetic action."

Crofton Councillor Stan Dyke, who told the meeting he had been one of the power commission's first customers in 1937, agreed with Reeve

Murison's statement that the service is worse than ever before.

Big Cougar Visits Town

CROFTON—A cougar as large as an overgrown calf was spotted in downtown Crofton by Mrs. R. Turney, Arthur Street.

Mrs. Turney contacted cougar hunter Frank Holman of Westholme, who was able to pick up the cougar's tracks. With his dog he followed the animal up Richards Mountain where the trail was lost.

Mr. Holman, who found tracks of three cougars on Richards Mountain last summer, said the predator may have been attracted to the area by odors from the garbage dump.

Lumber shipments last month in board feet were: United Kingdom, 5,871,000; South Africa, 5,152,000; U.S.A., 2,083,500; Australia, 1,132,000; P.R.I., 928,000; Puerto Rico, 616,000; Algeria, 309,551; Holland, 172,830; Italy, 29,923; France, 24,641.

Also shipped from local ports last month to American markets were 699 tons of pulp chips.

Hospital Costs Chiefly Local

LADYSMITH—About $105,000 of the Ladysmith General Hospital budget of $141,000 for 1959 will be spent in Ladysmith, hospital administrator John Simon told the Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon meeting this week.

He said $100,000 will go for wages, $13,000 for drugs and dressings, $10,000 for food, and the balance for other treatment, supplies, and maintenance.
